Michael R. Jakob is a Principal and Co-founder of Carriage Trade Insurance Agency. He has devoted much of his practice to risk management and insurance consulting to the not-for-profit community. He recently has worked with multiple Social Service Agencies, including foster care and adoption, homeless shelters, transitional housing, permanent housing, daycare centers, adult day care centers, food pantries, schools for emotionally handicapped and special needs children, Churches, synagogues, and private schools. Michael is sought out to help serve these types of nonprofit organizations across the United States. He believes the hands-on approach to each client has led him to work with those organizations around the country that serve individuals “in time to make a difference.”

Michael has served on the board or worked professionally with Social Service Agencies that provide an extensive range of services. This experience with these types of service providers enables Michael to stand out as a trusted consultant when it comes to helping the nonprofit community. Whether it is understanding programs, funding these programs, risk management, safety compliance, or insurance support, Michael has the broad range of expertise to ensure nonprofit organizations have the best opportunity to succeed.

Michael is a frequent speaker at nonprofit events. In addition, he currently serves these nonprofit entities as a board or committee member:
