What is a 'Chamber Ambassador'?

Have you ever thought about being an Ambassador for the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber of Commerce? Do you ever wonder, "Who are those people wearing the blue shirts at every mixer? What do they do?"

The chamber Ambassadors are members just like you. They are members who volunteer from their prospective businesses. The Ambassadors Committee serves as the goodwill arm of the chamber, supporting all of the chamber's mixers, attending ribbon cuttings and grand openings of businesses in the community. Our Ambassadors participate in new member orientation programs on a regular basis, and help with the retention of membership. In short, the Ambassadors help make the chamber's events happen.

For the past seven years, the Ambassadors have sponsored turkey drives to help the needy families in our community. This past Thanksgiving they collected more than 47 turkeys that were donated. They also sponsor a food and toy drive at the annual holiday mixer every year.

Being an Ambassador is a great way to give back to the chamber while marketing your business. It gives you immediate access to "new" businesses and existing businesses, introducing your services and forming long-standing relationships.

I served as an Ambassador for almost 10 years before becoming a board member. It was a great honor to serve and it was some of the most fun times I had while being in the chamber.

Today, the Ambassadors seem to have even more fun than I did (ie: beer and wine tours, no need to say anything else).

At the monthly Ambassador meetings, a few minutes is given for each Ambassador to share something that is going on in their life – A Second to Celebrate! This makes it easier to work together, and some of them have formed great friendships that extend beyond the chamber.

The Ambassadors have also created an "Ambassador of the Month," where they honor and recognize one of their own. They honor the Ambassador for all the hard work they have done for the Ambassador Committee.

If you'd like to see the "Ambassador of the Month," go to the Ambassador page on the chamber website. Each month a different Ambassador is acknowledged.

If you would like to become an Ambassador, please contact the chamber at 707-425-4625 or attend the next meeting.

The Ambassador Committee meets at 8 a.m. on the first Tuesday of every month at the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber of Commerce, 1111 Webster St., Fairfield.

Please consider joining our Ambassador Committee in 2019.

Wishing you and yours a happy new year!

MEET SUISUN CITY'S NEW MAYOR ...

Lori Wilson

“We have a lot of transition all around, but I think this is a great opportunity for us.” to reset and take advantage of this honeymoon period. We have this opportunity to focus on our vision, get everyone on the same page, and to really grow as a city to be what we are supposed to be.”

— LORI WILSON

ver the past six years, Lori Wilson has sat on the Suisun City council dais hundreds of times. She's held the gavel more times than she could ever count, chairing meetings and committees while serving as councilwoman and vice-mayor.

But none of that could prepare her for the emotional moment she took her seat as Suisun City's new mayor at the council's Dec. 4 meeting.

As council chambers erupted in thunderous applause following her Oath of Office, Wilson wiped tears from her eyes and looked out at a sea of family, friends and community leaders.

As she took the center seat and picked up the gavel as mayor for the first time, she could feel the difference inside her.

“There's a lot more responsibility in that middle seat,” she exclaimed.

“I kept thinking that night about all the people that have been involved in me getting to where I am today, all the people who have shared their thoughts and their hopes and their dreams for Suisun City,” she said one rainy morning in December, while sitting in her new office. “It was all with me when I sat in the mayor's seat for the first time.”

Wilson is now the captain of Suisun City's “ship” – and it goes without saying that the vessel is headed into uncharted waters. There's a new generation of leadership emerging in Suisun City, from the council dais to city staff.

The November election marked a significant turning point for the community. Wilson earned more than 56 percent of the votes for mayor, solidly defeating incumbent Pete Sanchez, who was vying for his fourth term. And in the council race, while incumbent Jane Day retained her seat, challenger Wanda Williams finished in second, ousting longtime councilman Mike Hudson.

Wilson's move to mayor also created a vacant seat on the council, which city leaders will look to fill in early 2019. That seat, along with Councilman Mike Segala's, will be up for election in November 2020.

"This all coincides with the change in city staff, too," Wilson said, pointing out that in the last year, Suisun City has brought on four department directors and will hire a city manager and chief of police in 2019. "We have a lot of transition all around, but I think this is a great opportunity for us, to reset and take advantage of this honeymoon period. We have this opportunity to focus on our vision, get everyone on the same page, and to really grow as a city to be what we are supposed to be."

As Wilson speaks, she has an exuberant smile that radiates the energy so many are excited to see her bring to Suisun City's ship. Her 2018 campaign slogan was "Fresh Voice, Fresh Vision" – a play on her 2012 campaign "Fresh Voice" – and she hopes people see this transition as a positive new chapter for Suisun City.

But it was not easy – "not by any stretch of the imagination," she said – to run against Sanchez. He had taken her under his wing when she was first elected in November 2012 and made her his vice-mayor in 2013, a position she served in until her move to mayor.

"I was the newest member of the council at the time and that said a lot about what he felt I was capable of," Wilson remembered. "I have a lot of respect for him and that made it really difficult to run against him."

When Wilson was elected to the council dais, she was still a relative newcomer to local politics. She ran unsuccessfully for a council seat in 2010 and was appointed to the parks and recreation commission a short time later. In 2012, she participated in Emerge California, a political program for democratic woman to prepare them to run for office. She threw her hat in the council ring that same year, and was the top vote-getter in the 2012 election.

Even then, serving as mayor never really crossed her mind.

"As a council member, you are one of five and I had always looked to the mayor as leading the city but still one of those five people," she explained. "But as I served, I began to see how much power was in the mayor's seat – to impact change, and how aggressive we are, and what we focus on. What we did as a council really was directed by the mayor. When Mayor Sanchez announced his plans to retire a couple years ago, that's when I really began to look at it."

She announced her intention to run for the mayor seat a year ago. A few months later, Sanchez did too.

"Ultimately, it came down to the reasons why I was running," Wilson said. "Did those reasons change with him entering the race? No, they did not. That was at my core of why I said yes to running and why I had to continue to run."

Her three primary goals for Suisun City over the next four years include:

• Enhance the quality of life of Suisun City residents by fixing roads, relieving local traffic congestions, increasing city amenities, and the variety of businesses and services, and cultivating community connections;

• Enhance economic development through increasing the competitiveness of Suisun City compared to the surrounding region while attracting appropriately sized businesses and further developing a strong and diverse economic base; and

• Enhance community safety by promoting a responsive public safety system that includes civic partnerships, community involvement and public education while retaining qualified and experienced police officers and firefighters.

She also has her own goals for the council, which she shared on Dec. 4. One is a commitment to developing a bench of Suisun City leadership that is “deep and qualified” so individuals who represent the city on commissions, committees and boards will feel empowered to seek a term on the council when a seat is available. Another important goal for her is to lead a unified and cohesive council.

“The truth is, we haven’t been cohesive and unified in the direction we want to head in for some time,” she said, adding that this new council “will not let grass grow under our feet.”

More than anything, she wants people to understand her commitment and dedication to her community. She and her husband, Chavares, have lived in Suisun City for 15 years and raised their sons here. Her desire to get involved in local politics stemmed from wanting to have a family’s voice on the council. Tyler, now 24, is a former United States Marine and a student at UC Berkeley. Kiren, 19, is a local entrepreneur and a student at Solano Community College.

“What has always been key to me is that people know I am always accessible,” Wilson said.

“I have long-standing text message conversations with people in the community. Some of them have been going on for a couple of years now. People can call me. They can email me. They can set up a time to have coffee with me. No matter what position I am in, my primary goal is for people to feel as though their voice matters, someone hears them, and is trying to make their life better.”

FAIRFIELD MAYOR Harry Price BEGINS HIS FOURTH TERM

The citizens of Fairfield have spoken following the November election and there's no shortage of respect and admiration for Mayor Harry Price and his council.

When the dust settled on the November election, as other communities around Fairfield, like Suisun City, welcomed new leadership and direction, the Fairfield City Council is maintaining its status quo.

With an overwhelming majority of the votes, Price easily secured his fourth term as mayor following months of next to no campaigning. And while the council race was a bit tighter, incumbents Catherine Moy and Chuck Timm were both re-elected, meaning that for at least the next two years, alongside Councilwoman Pam Bertani and Councilman Rick Vaccaro, leadership on the Fairfield dais remains the same.

"Stable leadership is really so important," Price said in a December interview, sitting in the mayor's office on the fourth floor of Fairfield City Hall that he has occupied since 2005. "We may disagree on some things but we all share a common vision for the future of Fairfield. How we get there may be subject to discussion and disagreement but at the end of the day, we move forward.

"It's really very gratifying to look at the evidence of the Nov. 6 election and that our voters chose to retain the existing council," he added. "It says a lot, especially to companies that are looking to locate here, because they know we are a pro-business council."

A Fairfield resident since 1965, Price had a long and rewarding career as an English, public speaking and debate teacher at Vanden High School before his retirement and subsequent election to the Fairfield City Council in 1997. He was the vice-mayor for six years before he was elected mayor in 2005. Even in brief conversations, he radiates his love for Fairfield and serving his community.

But six months ago, when faced with one of the most heartbreaking times in his life, he questioned if it was the time to run again. His wife of 28 years, Betsy, often at his side at city events and just as involved in the community as he, was terminally ill.

"We knew she didn't have much time but she wanted me to file," he said, his voice growing quieter as he shared the memory. "I promised her I'd file, but I wanted to be there with her, to take care of her, before I did any campaigning."

Betsy Price passed away Sept. 15, and campaigning was the last thought on her husband's mind.

But then something amazing happened in October. The "We Love Harry" signs – with a heart in place of the word 'love' – began popping up all over the city. Where did they come from?

"One day in early October, I got a phone call from Chuck Timm," said Price, adding Timm was also one of his past students at Vanden. "He said, 'Harry, open your garage door.' I opened the garage door and there stood Chuck, Rick (Vaccaro), and Amy and Dan Sharp with those signs."

Price could not believe the popularity of the signs. Fellow community leaders were the ones who helped to distribute them all over the city. Requests were coming in daily. Price and his stepson were invited to a Soroptimist meeting – Betsy was a longtime member – where Betsy was honored and members bid on the signs to raise money for club programs. Toward the end of October, people began calling Price directly asking for signs. Prior to then, he had not passed out a single sign. It was all friends who stepped in to help.

"It was all very emotional," he said. "Election night, I went out and took many of them down, because I don't like seeing that visual blight and I've done that with every campaign I've ever done. But then people started calling me because they wanted their sign back. When I go somewhere today it's not uncommon for people to ask if I still have them. Some of them are in college dorm rooms!"

When he looks back on the reluctance he had to pull papers, he is ultimately grateful that Betsy, knowing him so well, pushed him to run.

"People always ask me, 'how are you doing,' and for me, this is part of the healing process, being able to give back,"

he said. "It's all very gratifying, and I do have a good time."

Over the next four years, Price predicts Fairfield will continue to see solid economic growth, in large part due to its central location in Northern California and the Bay Area, proximity to Interstate 80, Interstate 680 and rail lines, and the city's sustainable and reliable water system coupled with the Fairfield-Suisun Sewer District.

In recent years, with the uptick in the national economy, Fairfield city leaders have been able to green light a number of housing and economic development projects. There were also significant expansions of existing businesses, notably in the medical sector with NorthBay Healthcare, Kaiser Permanente, Sutter Health and Partnership Healthcare.

Off the dais, Price plans to continue his involvement with the youth in the community. Children have been a lifelong passion for Price. He is involved in many local organizations, including The Leaven, the PAL Center, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, Fun on the Run, and the Fairfield Youth Commission.

He also enjoys visiting local schools and meeting students.

"I get invited to talk to elementary students about who a mayor is and what a mayor does," he said. "I go to Fairview Elementary every year. I often get asked, 'do you live in the White House?' 'How big is your limousine?'" – he laughs so hard at that his eyes twinkle – "You can see the joy I get out of it. I spend about 40 minutes with them and talk about what it means to be a citizen. They ask questions, but then I turn it around and ask them questions, too. Then I select one student to be the Honorary Mayor of Fairview Elementary and that student and their parents are invited to a council meeting to be recognized. You wouldn't believe the impact that has on them!"

His voice is full of pride as he talks about students he has met over the years. Many are children of his former high school students. Being able to watch them grow, whether it's at a Leaven after-school program or the PAL Center, is very rewarding.

"You wouldn't believe the number of letters of recommendation I write for students applying to college," he said. "One of my favorite expressions is 'one generation plants the tree, the next gets the shade.' Why do I write those letters of rec? It's because of those kids I see... you watch them grow and develop, you whet their appetites, and they just take off. It's such a joy to see that." ♦

Taxes are coming! Or are they?

Every year, millions of Americans jubilantly await the holiday season, dreaming of eggnog, gift giving, hope and optimism. Millions more dread the season that follows: tax season. But for those without an IOU on account with Uncle Sam, it's a continued celebration, thanks to their belated holiday gift – the good ole' tax refund!

If you're receiving a refund, you might be tempted to spend it on a new wardrobe, that big flat-screen TV, golf clubs or another luxury purchase. However, using your refund frugally may be a huge help in the months to come. A practical application of this is the 30-40-30 plan: a spending plan that accounts for you past, present, and future.

PAST : Designate 30% of your refund for paying off debt and catching up on outstanding bills.

Using your refund to pay off high-interest debt and bring delinquent accounts current is a responsible way to utilize the extra money. Making these payments could save you hundreds of dollars in interest over the life of the balance, and help you with rebuilding credit! This is a great way to maximize your refund dollars.

PRESENT : Earmark 40% for current.

Create a monthly spending plan, to include how you will spend your tax refund throughout the year. If you divide your tax refund over 12 months, it won't be as easy to splurge or spend your refund too quickly. Think of the new clothes you need for your growing toddler or teen, the braces your child may need, or paying for summer camp. Being strategic about how you will spend your money will make it easier to do it in the future.

FUTURE : Use 30% to jump start an emergency fund or longer term savings

Did you know that 61% of American's don't have enough saved to cover an emergency expense of just $1,000? That's according to Bankrate's financial security index survey published in 2018. (www.bankrate.com/banking/savings/financial-security-0118/) From car maintenance and home improvements to medical emergencies, an inconvenient event is bound to occur – that's life! Being prepared for such a situation is what matters most, so look at a portion of your refund as laying a secure financial foundation. And if you already have a rainy day fund, consider putting this 30% toward a down payment on a car or home, the establishment of an education account for your young ones or even adding it to your retirement fund!

But wait, there's more! Here are some additional tips to help you during tax season and throughout the year:

- 1. Start a 'special occasion' or holiday fund. Has Valentine's Day, your anniversary or your parent or child's birthday snuck up on you, leaving you to realize too late you don't have money for gifts? Set aside a portion of your tax refund for future special events.
- 2. Consider giving back. When you are working to make ends meet, the thought of putting money toward anything other than your own bills or savings account might be difficult. But think of the lesson it will teach your kids, and the rewarding feeling of making a small monthly donation to a local food pantry or shelter. Not only will you will be helping your community, you will possibly give yourself a tax write-off for the next year.
- 3. Register for Travis Credit Union's Personal Filing Seminar! Want to learn about tax updates that may affect you, as well as how to file your own taxes? Consider attending one of our "Personal Tax Filing Updates" seminars in the month of January! Times and locations are as follows:

CHAMBER MEMBER Testimonials

Solano First has been serving Solano County residents for more than 62 years and we are the only credit union that exclusively serves Solano County residents! For many of the years that we have been serving this community, we held a strong bond and connection with the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber of Commerce. Although we paid our dues, we were not as active in participating in the chamber. This year, it became my priority to find out what the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber was all about. Let me just say that the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber is so much more than just a place for businesses to connect. Since becoming involved, I have been exposed to so many individuals, entrepreneurs and businesses – real people with real needs! These are people who are community focused and driven to make Solano County an amazing place to live, work and serve. As businesses in Solano County, that is what we all do; serve our community! It doesn't stop there . . . We run our credit union as a family and treat our membership as such. The Fairfield-Suisun Chamber and their team do the same. They care about the businesses and the people they represent. Volunteering with the Chamber, I have not only built professional connections but also lifelong friendships. It is rewarding to know that I, and the business I represent, are once again a strong force promoting and working toward making Fairfield, Suisun City and Solano County an amazing place to live, work and worship now and for years to come. If you are a business or representing a business here in Solano County, I challenge you to join the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber and get involved! You won't regret it!

Jackson Medical Supply is a family owned business that specializes in personalized, consultative sales from newborns to seniors. With having three locations in Vacaville, Woodland and Vallejo, all offering services such as having a registered nurse on staff, certified fitters, insurance assistance, patient instruction, special orders, and even deliveries and repairs. I have been a proud representative of Jackson Medical Supply since 2008 and have grown up in a wonderful company that has taught me the importance of giving back. I value working for a company that strives to improve my community as well as offering the best customer service possible. Being a member of the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber is something that our business takes immense pride in. And, as a small business, we know how important it is to support other local businesses to make this community we love thrive! Becoming an Ambassador for the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber has not only helped Jackson Medical Supply grow, but it has also helped me grow as an individual. With the Leadership Today Program to Chamber Lunch Mobs and mixers, my professional connections have quickly become great friendships. I love and support the members of the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber of Commerce!

As a Real Estate Broker, I am always looking for different ways to connect with people on a personal basis. Through my own career path, I have had the privilege to meet some wonderful people whom I respect and admire. I am very fortunate to not only cross paths with these individuals, but also able to seek their advice and guidance. One of those wonderful people is David Islom, President of the Fairfield-Suisun Unified School District. It was during one of our meetings Mr. Islom asked me if I was a member of the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber of Commerce and shared how membership into the Chamber would greatly benefit my business. After briefly meeting with Tonya Dretzka, Director of Membership, and hearing the passion and dedication she had in her voice, I decided to become not only an active member but also a Citation Investor with Chamber. I want to get better acquainted with the Chamber Members that support our community. I realize that in real estate, knowing your local business partners is just as important as knowing the markets you serve. Although my service area expands far beyond this Solano County area, I look forward to getting to know your community first and foremost. Being an active member within this Chamber not only affords you the ability to meet and network with like-minded individuals, it can also take both you and your business to new heights. I would recommend to any business owner to meet with Tonya and become a member of the Fairfield-Suisun Chamber of Commerce.

The three-story North Wing addition will host a new café, 22 high-tech patient rooms, eight new surgical suites and a post-anesthesia care unit.

2019: Big Year Ahead for NorthBay Healthcare

With major construction projects wrapping up and a major anniversary to celebrate, 2019 will be a pivotal year for NorthBay Healthcare.

The not-for-profit, two-hospital health care system provides 24-hour emergency care, sophisticated surgical and diagnostic services, and also offers primary and specialty care to Solano County residents at several locations in Fairfield and Vacaville. But it wasn't always the all-encompassing, comprehensive health system it is today.

Intercommunity Memorial Hospital opened 60 years ago in a “modern” 32-bed facility on 5 acres of land on Pennsylvania Avenue in Fairfield. It became NorthBay Medical Center in 1986, and today comprises 132 hospital beds and 29 Emergency Department beds. Soon it will add 22 high-tech patient beds when its new North Wing opens this summer.

But first comes expansion of NorthBay Medical Center's Emergency Department.

It is in its fourth and final phase of construction, after opening 10 additional beds in December, as well as two new trauma bays, one devoted to cardiac resuscitation, and three high-acuity beds with patient lifts.

The final phase – to be completed in April – brings a new CT scanner into the department.

B. Konard Jones, CEO and president of NorthBay Healthcare.

Director of Emergency Services Heather Venezia, R.N., welcomes guests to the grand opening of the third phase of the Emergency Department expansion in December 2018.

At the same time, work on the three-story North Wing continues at a frenzied pace.

The $183 million, 77,000-square-foot addition will host a new café, 22 high-tech patient rooms, eight new surgical suites and a post-anesthesia care unit. It will also be home to diagnostic and central supply departments.

“The new wing and all its state-of-the-art equipment and design is testament to NorthBay’s dedication to serving its community,” said B. Konard Jones, CEO and president. “We are solely focused to deliver advanced medicine close to home for patients here in Solano County. And we can’t wait to unveil all the new features that will make our hospital a showcase.”

Plans are in the works for tours and celebrations in the summer, before the new wing opens for business in August. Look for NorthBay to tie in its 60th anniversary to the grand-opening celebrations, Jones said.

“This year we’ll be celebrating the amazing growth we’ve experienced, from a team of 45 employees that opened the first hospital in 1959 to the 2,800-plus employees who today encompass NorthBay Healthcare,” he said. “What we’ve done in 60 years is impressive, but we’re not finished by any means. Our vision must continue to change with the times, if we are to bring the best possible care to our community. We are still the only locally based, locally managed health care organization in Solano County, dedicated to delivering care for all who need it. And we’ve been doing it for 60 years. That’s something to celebrate.” ♦
