Help Your Caregivers Stay Organized

If you provide care for a loved one, you have my respect. Providing care and support to others while you juggle your own life's tasks is one of the most generous and toughest jobs you'll ever have.

The third Friday in February is National Caregivers Day. Caregivers can get support from their communities and coordinate the tasks, errands, updates and calendars of the people they care for by creating caregiving circles with Caring Village and CircleOf. And when neighbors reach out to ask, "What can I do to help?", you can coordinate meals and more with Lotsa Helping Hands.

NOVEMBER 11

Veterans Day

My husband is a veteran, and November 11, Veterans Day, is one he holds sacred. People in the military and their families can struggle to get the help they need for the unique circumstances that surround the challenges of military service.

The American Red Cross' Hero Care app lets families set up and submit an emergency request no matter where in the world service members are stationed. The app also highlights other Red Cross military assistance services, plus offers links to VA facility locations, benefits, mental health resources and career info.

FEBRUARY National Sickie Day

First Monday of February In the U.K., the first Monday of February is the day more workers call in sick.

You could Google what could be causing your hacking cough. Wouldn't it be nice if someone followed up in a few days to see if you're doing better? AskMD from Sharecare does just that.

Ada is powered by artificial intelligence, the result of many, many data points about your symptoms and the possible outcomes. I like that both will encourage you to check back in so the system can keep monitoring your improvement.

Both AskMD and Ada guide you through a series of questions to narrow down the choices. Then they both lead to guidance toward treatment, whether it is something you can do yourself or if you need to seek advice from medical professionals.

Capture All the Details from a Doctor's Visit

The second Tuesday in June is Call Your Doctor Day, but sometimes conversations about our health are hard to comprehend and harder to get all the details from.

I so wish I had a tool like Abridge during my mother's eight-year battle with cancer. Take the app to your medical appointments. It records the conversation and uses AI to extract and define the medical jargon, diagnoses and medication. It will track your health and help you keep up with important information without having to take notes and listen at the same time.

Help Your Nerdy Friends Step Away from the Computer

Some of us nerdy types don't get much sun because we're glued to our hobbies indoors. National Hike with a Geek Day on June 20 encourages people to grab their nerdy friends by the elbow and force them into the sunshine.

If your geeky friend has allergies like mine, look up the day's pollen count with the allergy app klarify before you leave the house. Achoo!

Burn Calories at Your Desk

Hypocrite alert!

As I write about National Move More Month (April), I realize I've been sitting in this chair for 5.3 hours straight. Don't be like me. Give these fitness tools a try.

Wakeout was the Apple App of the Year in 2020. I vowed to limit the tools in this book to ones that you can find on at least two platforms (Apple, Android, PC, web, etc.). But I feel obliged to include Wakeout because I bought it specifically for the marathon writing sessions for this book. Plus, the site gives you a bunch of samples, so perhaps that counts as web-based access?

Wakeout is designed to help you get little bursts of movement in your home office, and I love it. From the kitchenbased "Fridge Scan Squats" to the seated "Coffee Worship" arm bends, the little exercises will make you move and smile.

If you're not an Apple fan, MyFitnessPal has millions of loyal followers for activity and calorie tracking.

Prepare for Emergencies

I moved from earthquake country in San Diego into tornado territory in Tennessee. We keep flashlights, emergency supplies, shelf-stable foods and other emergency essentials at hand. These are some of the steps that the U.S. government's site Ready recommends. Every September the campaign urges people to prep during National Preparedness Month.

Check out the site for resources to make your plan for everything from helping people with disabilities to mapping evacuation routes. They recommend the FEMA App for emergency alerts, safety tips, shelter resources and planning.

Another tech tip: find the precise location of every 3 x 3meter square in the world with what3words. Every square is identified by three words, which means if you followed directions to dudes.celebration.retract, you'd end up at Charlie Daniels Park, the best place in my town to play Pokémon Go. This not only helps you find friends at a festival... it also can help emergency services find you or let you locate a location after a natural disaster when all the landmarks are gone.

Get a Good Night's Sleep

January 3 is the Festival of Sleep Day. I have some bad news for those of us who like sleep apps, though. Studies have found that few apps that claim to help you monitor your sleep are tested scientifically. And the ones that have show weak correlation to standard sleep tests.

Instead of a sleep app, try mediation podcasts/services like 10 Percent Happier, Calm, Headspace and Insight Timer to help you disconnect from the world and get better sleep. Toss Away the "Could Haves" and "Should Haves" Day

Third Saturday in July

The third Saturday in July is Toss Away the "Could Haves" and "Should Haves" Day, a reminder to let go of the little voices inside of us who say we should be doing more.

Two fun sites will help put your challenges into perspective: Pixel Thoughts and Scream into the Void. Both sites let you secretly share a frustration, but they have very different ways of helping you let the negative thought go. I won't spoil the fun by revealing their methods. Give them a try when you're overwhelmed.

Take a Walk with Your Pups

Let me see if I have this straight: February 22 is National Walking the Dog Day, but Walk Your Dog Month is January. And then National Walk Your Dog Week is the first week of October.

Well, that should cover the simple act of finding the leash, calming the dog down enough to clip to the collar and starting down your driveway for a brisk walk with your pup.

Whichever date you celebrate, do it with WoofTrax. Dogs need walks. Animal shelters need donations. Doesn't it make sense to link these two needs? WoofTrax lets you turn your afternoon puppy outings into fundraising opportunities for your favorite shelters.

HOLIDAYS AND THE NERDHERD

Holidays and the NerdHerd

You've made it to the end of the book! Congratulations. My husband never reads my books because, as he says, they don't have a plot.

The True Meaning of Nerd365

The title of this book is "Nerd365: A Year of APP-ortunities to Upgrade Your Life," and I want to help you plan out your year no matter when you start this book. This section includes a month-by-month guide to occasions that match up with the tech tips and tools.

But wait! There's more.

This QR code brings you to the calendar page on our site where you can check out the calendar and all the tips. You can even subscribe to Nerd365 to put the tips on your personal calendar.

Celebrate the NerdHerd

This section also contains the names of all the people who pre-ordered this book, affectionately known as my NerdHerd. They are listed in their birthday months, but I celebrate them all year long.

Why you NEED a Nerdy Best Friend...

Do you ever feel like the technology that was supposed to make our lives easier is the very thing making it so complicated?

If you do — you're not alone. Sorting through all the digital clutter to find real, effective solutions to our everyday problems can feel overwhelming.

To find technology to make your life easier, you could hunt for hours, demo for days or Google for greatness.

Or you could just ask Your Nerdy Best Friend.

Beth Ziesenis, Your Nerdy BFF, sorts through the digital clutter to discover tech tips, tools and tricks to solve life's everyday problems. Then she shares her best tips in easy-to-understand short bites with humor and pizzazz online and in person.

Beth takes the fear out of technology and helps you get right to the point with effective apps and tools that you can integrate into your everyday work and life.

Certified Speaking Professional

Beth earned the designation of Certified Speaking Professional, and speaking engagements are the primary way she shares her tips. All Beth Z's sessions include interaction, laughs and learning – both online and in person.

Attendees walk out of the session with tools they can use right away. Your Nerdy Best Friend is not a traditional Zoom box speaker with online programs or "Sage on the Stage" in person. Beth engages attendees with special effects, conversations, funny (nerdy) pictures, social media updates and serious buzz creation.

Want to save time, money and hassle with today's latest technology?

Stop wasting time resetting lost passwords, deleting unwanted emails and attending boring online meetings. Beth Z, aka Your Nerdy Best Friend, has done the homework for you with more than 400 tested tech tools, tips and apps.

Nerd365 divides the tips into bite-sized insights so you can digest the new tech all year long.

What's inside:

- Keep your web searches private on Ask a Stupid Question Day (Page 34)
- Track your packages and deliveries on National Bubble Wrap Appreciation Day (Page 14)
- Transform your complicated data into helpful infographics for Information Overload Day (Page 40)
- Manage your inbox on Fight Procrastination Day (Page 42)
- Eliminate duplicate files on your computer on National Look Alike Day (Page 48)

Plus...

- Password management tips
- Computer backup advice
- Social media marketing resources
- Expense tracking tools
- Tools just for fun
