

Half A Century Of Prominent Honorees

Chamber Marks 50th Peter B. Mathews St. Pat's Breakfast

MaryRose Warcholak's reaction last year was pretty typical of the honoree being singled out from among hundreds at the Peter B. Mathews St. Patrick's Day Breakfast.

As the music and chatter died down, Chamber President Ward Todd took his place at the podium to read the "Royal Order of the Blarney Stone," the comical creed outlining attributes of the person who would nab the coveted title "Honorary Irish Person of the Year."

It was Warcholak whose name was called in that dramatic finale at the festive morning party, where even the orange juice flows green.

"I was astonished," said the senior vice president of retail banking at Ulster Savings Bank. "When (Chamber President Ward Todd) started to read the honor and said the word 'her,' I thought, 'Oh, so it's a woman this year. I hope it's somebody I know.'"

"When he called my name, I was flabbergasted. I was honored and humbled because I don't look at myself in that bigger role."

It is, no doubt, a big deal and a big year.

This marks the 50th anniversary of the Peter B. Mathews St. Patrick's Day Breakfast, which fetes not only the Irish spirit, but the remarkable men and women—those who have gone above and beyond to make the community a better place.

Begun by the late Len Cane, the longtime Chamber President, the breakfast is one of Ulster County's most beloved traditions, and though it is light in spirit, it is heavy in meaning. All those who have earned the honorary Irish title have etched for themselves a noble place in Kingston's history.

Warcholak is now among them.

Not only has she been an integral part of Ulster Savings Bank for almost 16 years, including serving as a board member of the bank's Charitable Foundation, but she has left her mark on many other area nonprofits.

Warcholak is the vice chair and soon-to-be chairperson of the Ulster County United Way board of directors. Additionally, she is the second vice chair of the Benedictine Health Foundation, where she serves on the committees for the Winter's Eve Gala and Rosemary D. Gruner Bike for Cancer Care event.

The Reis Group Will Be The Breakfast Sponsor for March

The Reis Group is proud to sponsor the 50th annual Peter B. Mathews Honorary Irishman of the Year Breakfast. The Reis Group is Insurance Worth Having.

The Reis Group was founded by Frank Reis in 1966 in the bedroom of his apartment. Since then, through growth, acquisitions and mergers, the Reis Group has grown to 4 locations in the Hudson Valley and Capital District with over 50 employees. The businesses that now make up The Reis Group have local histories that go back to the late 19th Century.

The Reis Group is a strong supporter of local causes and events. In the past 10 years, The Reis Group has donated well over one half of a million dollars to local charities, capital projects, civic events and regional fundraising. The Reis Group prides itself on supporting the causes and events that mean most to the people of Kingston and Ulster County. Supporting the community that supports their employees and families is a guiding business principle of The Reis Group.

The Reis Group offers all lines of insurance: from auto and homeowners, life insurance, group health insurance to specialized workers compensation solutions and risk management, to large manufacturing, municipal and school system insurance. The Reis Group maintains a high level of commitment to education and service with 49 licensed insurance professionals, many with advanced insurance designations, providing the best advice and service in the area.

This year, The Reis Group is proud to be co-sponsoring the 50th annual Peter B. Mathews breakfast with Keegan Ales. The milk stout, specially brewed by Tom Keegan, is consumed in many cultures as a low alcohol, fortifying beverage to be enjoyed with breakfast!

We thank you for attending! The Reis Group. Insurance Worth Having.

Family Grocer Turning 100 This Year

Adams Hosts Next Chamber Mixer

Adams Fairacre Farms would do Neil Sedaka proud. The family-owned grocery store has events planned for each and every month of the year—almost inspiring a rewrite of Sedaka's 1961 hit, "Calendar Girl."

The occasion? The store's 100th anniversary. The sentiment? Our hearts' in a whirl. We love, we love, we love our little sweet Adams store.

Fittingly, this month's Mixer will be held March 7 at the Lake Katrine market at 1560 Ulster Ave. from 5-7 p.m., a time of the year when it bursts with the early colors of spring.

Adams Manager Mike Paesano said each month, something new and special is happening at the four Hudson Valley stores to mark the 100th milestone in appropriate fashion.

In January, the store blitzed the area press with news of its centennial, and in February, it gave away a $5,000 gift card.

This month, Adams will do up its 36th-annual Lawn and Garden Show March 8-17 against a backdrop of patios and ponds, walkways and waterfalls and flowering bulbs and shrubs. That's where the Chamber Mixer will take place, and there will be plenty of festive hors d'oeuvres and sweets to go around.

"We're going to make sure we're decorated for our 100th year and have cakes with our logo," Paesano said. "It's all about our customers. Without them, it wouldn't happen."

The grocery store, which grew out of a farm founded by Ralph and Mary Rogers Adams in 1919, is an area institution known for its fresh produce, quality meats, seafood and baked goods.

The stores in Lake Katrine, Poughkeepsie, Wappingers Falls and Newburgh carry endless bins stocked with hand-selected fruits and vegetables that originate from at least a dozen local farms, while its meats and poultry come from local butchers. All four markets also specialize in prepared foods that include fresh salad and hot-food bars as well as floral and gift shops.

Paesano said Adams' success can be traced to its owners: Donald, Patrick and Steve.

"They allow employees to be themselves. It makes everybody who comes into the store feel comfortable," he said. "The owners promote pleasantries like being kind and doing the right thing, and you actually get thanks and recognition for doing that."

"The owners are also available. They come to the stores multiple times a week and work with us and want to know what's going on in the communities and make sure their managers are reaching out to those communities," Paesano said.

"The best part is the owners encourage management to go and search out great, new products that are unique to each store, which makes us a bit different from conglomerates. In Ulster County, we sell Boice's dairy products. We know the family and everyone around here knows the family, so we're able to give that extra local plug."

Paesano said most importantly, the family stands by its products.

"Our meat manager is a buyer that sources our meats out of Josef Meiller Farm in Pine Plains and deals directly with ranchers in the Midwest.

"Our seafood gets trucked in regularly from Boston, Connecticut and New Jersey, and our produce comes from local farmers in the summer months. In our bakery, we're always seeking out new talent and those with a passion for baking. For us, it's important that you finish your main course with a great dessert."

As for the rest of the calendar year, expect special giveaways like seed packets carrying the Adams centennial stamp this spring and barbecues and birthday cakes later this summer. In November, the family plans to donate 100 Thanksgiving dinners to the Hudson Valley Food Bank and hold toy raffles at each store in December.

"Our owners are great and good-hearted people," Paesano said. "I feel blessed every day that I'm a part of this business."

Chamber mixers are a great way to network and promote your business. Be sure to bring plenty of business cards. This free networking event is open to Chamber members and prospective members. Reservations are a must and can be made by calling the Chamber office at (845) 338-5100 or by registering online at www.ulsterchamber.org.

Ulster Federal Credit Union Offers Personal Touch

Longtime President, CEO Retiring At Year's End

Walk into the lobby of Ulster Federal Credit Union and you'll see tellers, a drive-up window, ATMs and a new accounts desk. It sure looks like a bank.

When you see the products UFCU offers, such as savings and checking accounts, auto and home equity loans, it sure does act like a bank.

"We're a credit union," says President and CEO Rick Mantey. "We're not a bank. Most people don't know the difference.

"On the surface, we provide personal financial products and services just like a bank does. The difference between a bank and a credit union is really how the organization is structured and how we're organized. Credit unions, by law, are not-for-profit organizations. We don't have shareholders to satisfy."

Mantey said when you join a credit union, you become a shareholder and part owner.

"Like banks, we try to satisfy our owners," he said. "Most money-centered banks are owned by shareholders and their objective is to make money and a profit on their investment. Credit union members, their objective is to obtain low-cost financial products and services. That's really the difference. We're not in business to make record-breaking profits. We're in business to allow our members to have access to low-cost financial products and services."

Credit unions are governed by a board of directors like a bank, but the members are not paid and all are volunteers. Mantey said your influence is also not dictated by how many shares you own.

"Here in the credit union world, every one of our members has one vote," he said. "You can have $100,00 on deposit with us or you can have $25 on deposit with us, but when it comes to electing directors and so forth, you're one vote at our annual meeting. No one person has any more influence than the person next to them, regardless of how much money you have."

UFCU was organized Feb. 14, 1941 as the City of Kingston School District Employees Credit Union.

"We've certainly grown over the years," Mantey said.

Today, UFCU boasts 30 employees at four branches, including the main branch at 127 Schwenk Drive in Uptown Kingston; 807 Ulster Ave. in the town of Ulster; 3139 Route 9W in Saugerties; and a part-time branch serving the Woodland Pond retirement community in New Paltz.

That personal touch is on full display at the credit union, where tellers are alerted 10 days before a customer's birthday and everyone is greeted by their first name. In fact, Mantey tells his staff the personal touch is the primary reason a customer would choose UFCU over other financial institutions.

"They choose to come to us because they're treated like a person," he said. "We try not to refer to people as an account number. I attribute a lot of our growth to that over the years.

"It's a very personal relationship we try to maintain with our members. That's the personal side of banking that I think your large, money-centered banks have lost over the years. That's still maintained here."

Mantey said one of the first things he did when taking over as president and CEO was join the Chamber. He is a regular at breakfasts and networking mixers.

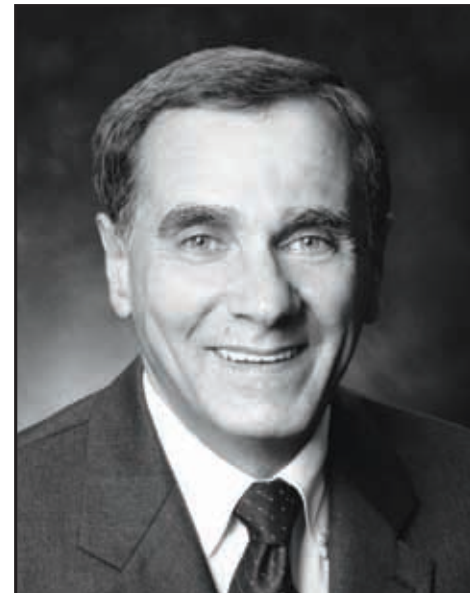

"I love the Chamber, and who doesn't? I attribute a fair amount of the credit union's growth to my getting out there and getting to know people," he said. "The Chamber provides all sorts of great networking opportunities. I would recommend that to any business."

Mantey also attended Leadership Ulster Development Institute before serving on a host of boards in the community, including the Chamber, HealthAlliance Foundation, Ulster County Community College Foundation, Gateway Community Industries Foundation, New York State Credit Union Association and the American Cancer Society.

Mantey, who came to Kingston after a 20-year career with a community bank in Albany, is retiring at the end of the year but plans to remain active in local non-profits. He said his work at UFCU has been "extremely rewarding" bringing out the personal side of banking.

"Nothing lasts forever and it's time," he said. "It's been a way to help others, and I've enjoyed it while getting to meet great people in the process. I look back over my 25 years, if I hadn't been involved in community organizations, I wouldn't have so many good friends that I do now. It's about meeting people, making friendships and helping others along the way."

Ulster Federal Credit Union has four locations in Ulster County. The main branch, located at 127 Schwenk Drive in Uptown Kingston, can be reached at (845) 339-5544 or www.ulsfedcu.org.

Chamber Marks 50th Peter B. Mathews St. Patrick's Breakfast

On top of everything, Warcholak, along with Rondout Savings Bank President Cheryl Bowers, co-chairs the Kingston Lions Club annual Thanksgiving dinner for the disabled and visually impaired.

In past years, one of the prerequisites of being named the Honorary Irish Person was that the winner "possess not a single drop of Irish blood," though in recent years, the rule has been relaxed a bit.

Warcholak, whose maiden name is Castronovo, laughed when asked if she has any green in her veins.

"Not an ounce of it," said the native Western New Yorker. "I'm full-blooded Italian."

Warcholak celebrated last year's winning at Savona's Trattoria with fellow Italian and 2016 Honorary Irish Person Cheryl Bowers.

"That Italian heritage still came through on that day as well," she said.

In all seriousness, Warcholak's advice for this year's recipient is to simply enjoy the moment.

"Listen intently, and when your name is called, go on up there and accept that award. It's humbling in so many ways because so many Chamber members do so much, but don't ever think that your name is not going to be called."

Sponsored annually by the Reis Group, the breakfast typically is a sell-out, so Chamber members are urged to reserve a spot early.

As usual, the breakfast will feature entertainment from the Kingston Lions Club Roarin' Pride Band and Ulster County Ancient Order of Hibernians Pipes and Drums. Vocalists Terry McCann and Andrew Hoben also will provide entertainment.

Chamber breakfast programs are a great way to network with other local business leaders and stay on top of current events. Pre-registration is strongly encouraged. For more information or to register, call the Chamber at (845) 338-5100 or go online at www.ulsterchamber.org.

The Twaalfskill Club a 'Hidden Treasure'

Spring Means Golf is Back at the Historic Links

Spring is just around the corner and that can mean only one thing: Golf is back at local courses like the Twaalfskill Club at 282 West O'Reilly St. in Kingston.

Twaalfskill, a private, member-owned golf club with a swimming pool and social facility, opened in 1902. The 9-hole golf course usually opens around April 1, so get those clubs out and be ready. Golf pro Jeff Schaller Jr. maintains a fully stocked pro shop and is available for lessons from the third week of March to November.

Among the luminaries who have played the venerable Kingston course are boxing champion Joe Louis and golf legend Gene Sarazen. Industry titan John Jacob Astor, a former club member who died aboard the Titanic in 1912, and his son, Vincent, also played the hilly course.

"The course is basically laid out by nature," says General Manager Andrew Connors. "There's not a flat lie on the course. It's a difficult layout due to undulating greens, up and downhill lies, side hill lies and the small devilish greens. It's always in great condition. We're getting ready right now for the opening."

Connors said the course is immaculately maintained by course superintendents John Rizza and Greg Johnson along with their invaluable crew.

Twaalfskill also hosts three men's member leagues and a mixed-member league during the week. The club is also home to several local golf tournaments, including the Ulster County Amateur Men's Golf Championship, also known as "The Herdegen." The tourney is named after Father Henry E. Herdegen, a former Twaalfskill member.

"We get a portion of the tournament every year," Connors said. "Our members are happy to have it because it showcases our course and club to the public."

Twaalfskill is about more than golf. The club's banquet facilities can accommodate up to 200 people during the summer, including outside events on the veranda overlooking the golf course. In the winter, the club can host parties for up to 120.

During the golf season the club is open daily for lunches and dinners for its 300 members.

Connors said Twaalfskill is always looking for more members and a social membership is only $312 a year.

"We have a great social atmosphere," Connors said. "The clubhouse is open year-round. We have memberships available, we're right in the heart of Kingston and we've been here for 117 years."

Regarding memberships, Connors said the most popular is the adult (ages 30-62) golf membership, which goes for $1,685 a year. A couple's golf membership is $2,808 a year. The corporate membership is $5,200 a year and can include up to five golfers from the same business. Twaalfskill also offers discounts for those under 30 and older than 62 (call Connors for rates).

Twaalfskill also offers an out-of-town membership for $1,125 for those living outside a 50 miles radius of Kingston. All membership rates include state sales tax.

Connors, who has been at Twaalfskill for 36 years and GM since 1995, said memberships have picked up in the last five or six years following the economic downturn.

"I have some members who have been here for 60 years," Connors said. "They were caddies here in the '50s and '60s and they still come around. It's like a family. Word of mouth is our best advertisement. Our members tell others about the club and when nonmembers come for a function or a tournament they always like what they see. Our prices are very reasonable, therefore we do retain the existing members and are always looking to get new members."

Twaalfskill hosted one of the Chamber's more well-attended Mixers a few years ago and often provides door prizes for the networking events.

"[Chamber President] Ward [Todd] and the Chamber have been very good about promoting us," Connors said. "Twaalfskill has been called the hidden treasure of the Hudson Valley because even though we are close to everything, we are still secluded enough to be a quaint quiet get-a-way. The club has been here forever and guests still come up for parties or events and they're like, 'This is a beautiful club, we didn't even know it was up here.'"

"It's nice to let people know there is a private golf and swimming club right in the middle of Kingston that is accepting memberships. Twaalfskill is like a gem right in the heart of New York's first capital... Kingston."

The Twaalfskill Club, located at 282 West O'Reilly St. in Kingston, can be reached at (845) 331-5577 or www.Twaalfskillgolf.org
