

Cox Donates $100,000 to Manna Food Pantry and the United Way
Aid from Cox to support Gulf Coast families with Hurricane Sally recovery

Pensacola – Cox Communications and Cox Automotive are working together to support local nonprofits help families in the Gulf Coast recover from Hurricane Sally. Today, Cox announced a pair of $50,000 grants awarded to both Manna Food Pantry and the United Way of West Florida. These grants awarded through the James M. Cox Foundation will support local families as they continue to rebuild their lives following the storm.

“We are proud to support these two great organizations,” said David Deliman, market vice president of Cox Gulf Coast. “They have always stepped to the forefront when people in our community need assistance, and their response to Hurricane Sally is no exception. We are happy to provide both Manna and the United Way with these funds to further help our neighbors recover.”

The James M. Cox Foundation is the charitable arm of Cox Enterprises, the parent company of Cox Communications and Cox Automotive. In response to the growing strain on the community from Hurricane Sally along with COVID-19, the foundation announced the two $50,000 donations to support people in need where Cox employees live and work.

“It was heartbreaking to see the amount of damage Hurricane Sally caused in Escambia and Santa Rosa Counties,” said Anthony Pope, senior vice president and region manager of Cox’s Southeast Region. “We’re happy to do our part in helping these two outstanding organizations help get us further along the road to recovery.”

“We’re so grateful to Cox for this amazing gift of support to Manna and our community,” said DeDe Flounlacker, executive director of Manna Food Pantry. “We know families in our area will be recovering from the effects of the hurricane for months to come. This gift will help us provide over 30,000 healthy meals to those in need.”

The landfall of Hurricane Sally caused severe damage to homes and businesses along the Gulf Coast. The United Way has been at the forefront of the recovery effort, raising money for partner agencies assisting families.

“United Way of West Florida is grateful for our partnership with Cox,” said Laura Gilliam, president and CEO of the United Way of West Florida. “This contribution to the relief fund will provide critical support to our community as it recovers from the devastating effects of Hurricane Sally.”

The two nonprofits were surprised with the grant announcement during their appearance on Across the Gulf Coast, a monthly television program that highlights local nonprofits.
