WHERE DOES WATER FOR PEOPLE WORK?

Water For People currently works in nine countries around the world: Honduras, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Bolivia, Peru, Malawi, Rwanda, Uganda, and India. Water For People employees in-country know the culture, language, and communities they serve. However, based on special grants and funding, they have worked in more than 40 other countries over the years but have found that a targeted approach is more effective and efficient.

WATER FOR PEOPLE

- Market-based approaches

Water For People works with the private sector (local businesses/entrepreneurs) to ensure ongoing service is provided. This helps to create jobs.

- Replication and scale

Water For People demonstrates a model that others can take on to create a global movement where everyone has access to water and sanitation!

- Focus on sustainability

Water For People thinks about the long-term every step of the way. They want these communities to be independent of ongoing foreign aid for their water and solutions. Just like you and me, we want these communities to have reliable access to water and sanitation for generations.

- Transparency

Water For People believes that in order to truly solve the water crisis they must be accountable for their programs. Therefore, they share all of their financials and investment numbers with the public through their reporting platform. Charity Navigator gives them a 95.26 rating.
