

MISSOURI CRIMINAL ANIMAL PROTECTION LAWS¹

INTRODUCTION

Missouri's animal protection statutes consist of the Consolidated Cruelty statutes, animal baiting and fighting statutes, and other offenses. The bulk of the statutes are contained within Chapter 578, Miscellaneous Offenses. Sections 578.005 through 578.050 cover animal abuse, neglect, and animal fighting offenses. Sections 578.170 through 578.179 contain additional statutes covering baiting and fighting of animals. Other statutes cover harm to service animals and bear wrestling.

This document lists the statutes followed by relevant case law from Missouri, where available. Cases from other states are also included where laws are similar. A brief overview of Missouri's sentencing guidelines can be found on the final page of this document.

1. Exemptions

578.007. Acts and facilities to which sections 578.005 to 578.023 do not apply

The provisions of sections 578.005 to 578.023 shall not apply to:

1. Care or treatment performed by a licensed veterinarian within the provisions of chapter 340, RSMo;
2. Bona fide scientific experiments;
3. Hunting, fishing, or trapping as allowed by chapter 252, RSMo, including all practices and privileges as allowed under the Missouri Wildlife Code;

7. The lawful, humane killing³ of an animal by an animal control officer, the operator of an animal shelter, a veterinarian, or law enforcement or health official;
8. With respect to farm animals⁴, normal or accepted practices of animal husbandry;
9. The killing of an animal by any person at any time if such animal is outside of the owned or rented property of the owner or custodian of such animal and the animal is injuring any person or farm animal but shall not include police or guard dogs while working;
10. The killing of house or garden pests⁵; or

² 578.005(8) “Owner”, in addition to its ordinary meaning, any person who keeps or harbors an animal or professes to be owning, keeping, or harboring an animal;

578.005(6) “Harbor”, to feed or shelter an animal at the same location for three or more consecutive days;

³ 578.005(7) “Humane killing”, the destruction of an animal accomplished by a method approved by the American Veterinary Medical Association's Panel on Euthanasia (JAVMA 173: 59-72, 1978); or more recent editions, but animals killed during the feeding of pet carnivores shall be considered humanely killed;

11. Field trials, training and hunting practices as accepted by the Professional Houndsmen of Missouri.

Applicable Case Law

State v. Hill*, 996 S.W.2d 544 (Mo.App. W.D.,1999)

Facts: A woman who stabbed six cats to death was not precluded from being charged with intentionally causing injury or suffering to an animal by this exemption.

Holding: The district court held that the exemption for owners killing their animals under 578.007.6 did not apply to the second element of animal abuse. That element, §578.012.1(2), applies when a person “[p]urposely or intentionally causes injury or suffering to an animal.”

2. Neglect and Abandonment

578.009. Animal neglect or abandonment—penalties—costs and expenses

1. A person is guilty of animal⁶ neglect when he has custody or ownership or both of an animal and fails to provide adequate care⁷ or adequate control⁸, which results in substantial harm to the animal.
2. A person is guilty of abandonment when he has knowingly abandoned an animal in any place without making provisions for its adequate care.
3. Animal neglect and abandonment is a class C misdemeanor upon first conviction and for each offense, punishable by imprisonment or a fine not to exceed five hundred dollars, or both, and a class B misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment or a fine not to exceed one thousand dollars, or both upon the second and all subsequent convictions. All fines and penalties for a first conviction of animal neglect or abandonment may be waived by the court provided that the person found guilty of animal neglect or abandonment shows that adequate, permanent remedies for the neglect or abandonment have been made. Reasonable costs incurred for the care and maintenance of neglected or abandoned animals may not be waived. This section shall not apply to the provisions of section 578.007.

⁶ 578.005(3) “Animal”, every living vertebrate except a human being;

⁷ §578.005 “adequate care,” normal and prudent attention to the needs of an animal, including wholesome food, clean water, shelter and health care as necessary to maintain good health in a specific species of animal”

⁸ §578.005(2) “adequate control,” to reasonably restrain or govern an animal so that the animal does not injure itself, any person, any other animal, or property”

4. In addition to any other penalty imposed by this section, the court may order a person found guilty of animal neglect or abandonment to pay all reasonable costs and expenses necessary for:
 - (1) The care and maintenance of neglected or abandoned animals within the person's custody or ownership;
 - (2) The disposal of any dead or diseased animals within the person's custody or ownership;
 - (3) The reduction of resulting organic debris affecting the immediate area of the neglect or abandonment; and
 - (4) The avoidance or minimization of any public health risks created by the neglect or abandonment of the animals.

Applicable Case Law

State v. Marshall*, 821 S.W.2d 550 (Mo.App. E.D. 1991)

Facts: The court upheld a conviction for animal neglect where his two pit bulls escaped from a pen and into a woman's backyard, attacking her and causing leg injuries.

Holding: Additionally, it found the statute defining "animal neglect," 578.009.1, was a strict liability crime in that it did not require criminal intent. Such statutes were found to be acceptable where:

1. they created public welfare offenses;
2. the penalties involved were small; and
3. conviction of the offense does not do great damage to offender's reputation

State v. Choate*, 976 S.W.2d 45 (App. W.D. 1998)

Facts: Defendant appealed a conviction for animal neglect where his German Shepherd escaped and attacked a five-year-old boy, severely injuring him by tearing his muscle from his bone. No harm was done to the animal.

Holding: The court held that while the animal neglect statute's main purpose was to protect animals, the language of the statutory definition of adequate control made clear that the offense could apply where an unrestrained animal injures a human.

State ex rel. Zobel v. Burrell*, 167 S.W.3d 688 (Mo. 2005)

Facts: Defendant filed a writ of mandamus challenging the authority of two Humane Societies to dispose of 120 emaciated horses seized from Zobel’s property.

Holding: Missouri’s Supreme Court held that the terms animal abuse and animal neglect were not unconstitutionally vague in that they were defined in §578.009 and §578.012, respectively. Furthermore, the terms adequate control and adequate care were defined in §578.005.

3. Animal Abuse

578.012. Animal abuse--penalties

1. A person is guilty of animal abuse when a person:
 - (1) Intentionally or purposely kills an animal in any manner not allowed by or expressly exempted from the provisions of sections 578.005 to 578.023 and 273.030, RSMo⁹;
 - (2) Purposely or intentionally causes injury or suffering to an animal; or
 - (3) Having ownership or custody of an animal knowingly fails to provide adequate care or adequate control.¹⁰
2. Animal abuse is a class A misdemeanor, unless the defendant has previously plead guilty to or has been found guilty of animal abuse or the suffering involved in subdivision (2) of subsection 1 of this section is the result of torture or mutilation, or both, consciously inflicted while the animal was alive, in which case it is a class D felony.

Applicable Case Law

State v. Hirsch* 260 S.W. 557 (Mo. Ct. App. 1924)

Facts: Defendant had a number of ponies and horses that did not have feed available in the area where the animals were fenced in.

Holding: Intent can be inferred from impounding animals without food.

⁹ Section 273.030 provides that dogs may be killed when in the act of killing, wounding or chasing sheep in any portion of this state, or under such circumstances as to satisfactorily show that such dog or dogs has or have been recently engaged in killing or chasing sheep or other domestic animal or animals, such person is authorized to immediately pursue and kill such dog or dogs; provided, however, that such dog or dogs shall not be killed in any enclosure belonging to or being in lawful possession of the owner of such dog or dogs.

¹⁰ See footnotes supra for definitions of the terms adequate care and adequate control.

State v. Brookshire* 355 S.W. 2d 333 (Mo. Ct. App. 1962)

Facts: Many of Defendant’s cattle were dying. Defendant told the veterinarian that he had very little feed for the cattle. There was evidence that the cattle were completely fenced in. Defendant had the money to buy more feed.

Holding: Criminal intent is an essential element of the offense of cruelty to animals. Criminal intent could be inferred from Defendant’s act of intentionally impounding and confining animals, and failing to supply them with sufficient food.

State v. Price*, 772 S.W.2d 9 (Mo. Ct. App. 1989)

Facts: Here a woman was convicted of animal abuse under §578.012 for failing to adequately care for approximately eighty cats.

Holding: The court reversed and remanded a conviction for animal abuse where the prosecution omitted the word “willfully” in the information. At this time, §578.012.1(3) used the term “willfully” rather than “knowingly.” The court raised this issue sua sponte because neither party had raised it.

State v. Marshall* 821 S.W. 2d 550 (Mo. Ct. App. 1991)

Facts: Defendant owned two pit bulls. The dogs ended up in someone else’s backyard. The dogs attacked the woman, the rabies control officer, and the woman’s son.

Holding: The term “willfully” is an essential element of offense of animal abuse. Criminal intent doesn’t have to be shown in order to sustain a conviction for animal neglect.

State v. Stout*, 958 S.W.2d 32 (Mo. Ct. App. 1997)

Facts: The defendant tied his dog to the bumper of his truck and dragged at 20-25 miles per hour. The Court held that evidence that defendant’s actions resulted in the removal of the tough skin of dog’s paws and corporal pads was sufficient to show that dog’s suffering and injuries were the result of mutilation.

Holding: The Court determined that mutilation would exist where “any severe injury that results in the cutting off or removal of an essential part of a person or thing and impairs its completeness, beauty, or function.” The injury did not have to be permanent.

State v. Hill* 996 S.W. 2d 544 (Mo. Ct. App. 1999)

Facts: Defendant stabbed a pregnant cat out of rage. Defendant then decided to slice the cat open from throat to groin. The cat's five kittens were also stabbed.

Holding: Statutes that exempt animal owners from criminal prosecution for killing their own animals do not preclude owners from being charged with purposely or intentionally injuring or causing suffering to an animal.

State v. Roberts*, 8 S.W.3d 124 (Mo. Ct. App. 1999.)

Facts: The defendant had beaten his dog, breaking ribs, severing arteries, and causing significant internal damage.

Holding: The Court held that internal injuries could constitute mutilation where ribs are broken so badly that they no longer function to protect internal organs and cause additional internal damage. The court also found that beating the dog for at least an hour constituted torture.

State v. Fackrell*, 277 S.W. 3d 859 (Mo. Ct. App. 2009)

Facts: Defendant noticed that her dog was losing weight and hair. Two months later, Defendant told her estranged husband that the dog was really sick and needed to be put down but she could not afford to take her to the vet because she could not afford a veterinarian bill. The estranged husband took the dog to the veterinarian. The veterinarian said that the dog had mange that took at least a month or two to develop. The dog was put to sleep.

Holding: Evidence that defendant knowingly failed to provide adequate care although she indicated that she did not have the money to take the dog to the veterinarian and that she knew that her dog was sick is enough to support a conviction for animal abuse.

The court may order the owner or possessor of the dog to pay the costs associated with the animal's keeping and care during the pending appeal.
