The Year in Review 2009

Despite some bumps in the road, the year 2009 was still a good year—because our members continued to value the work we do. The Chamber continued to be a major force in the business and professional community of the Eastern Metro area. We gave our members access to opportunity and information through our many events and activities. We were advocates for the business community, taking strong and effective stands on issues that could threaten their ability to be successful in the marketplace. And we exerted the influence an organization that represents 90,000 hard working citizens could be expected to wield, pushing back on those who would over-regulate, or attempt to control the free flow of ideas, capital and business.

Let's take a look back at the many things your Chamber was involved in during 2009:

The year started out with us still being located at the Sable office, with Jo Snell from the E-470 Public Highway Authority firmly at the helm, encouraging her Board and members to hang in there, and promising The Chamber would continue to be their greatest advocate in year ahead.

Several new State Legislators including Rep. Karen Middleton, Rep. Cindy Acree and Rep. Su Ryden joined us at the Community College of Aurora for the first Legislator's Breakfast despite a heavy snow storm. And during that same month, Arapahoe/Douglas Works!, headed by Chamber Board member Joe Barela won a national award for Workforce Development. Speaking of Board members, we also said farewell to Kathy Boyle from University of Colorado Hospital, Diane Garcia of 2G Associates, Kelly Leid with Oakwood Homes, Katie Roche with Raytheon,

John Stanton of Prudential Colorado Realty, Maren Stewart from The Children's Hospital and Kathy Yeager with The Medical Center of Aurora. We also learned that former board chair Dale Mingilton took over the Better Business Bureau of Denver-Boulder and former board chair Rick Poppe

Chamber to start year with two great programs

Aurora Chamber members will be able to tap into both the military and the State Legislature early in the New Year with two upcoming special events.

For earlier risers and those who want to know what our state legislators from the Eastern Metro area have on their agenda for the session ahead, the Government Affairs Committee, in association with the Community College of Aurora, is hosting a Legislator's Breakfast on Monday, Jan. 11 at 7 a.m. in the Rotunda Room of the CCA Centretech Campus. Invited to the morning meeting are State Senators Mary Hodge, Nancy Spence, Morgan Carroll and Suzanne Williams. Also invited to share their views with The Chamber are State Representatives Kevin Priola, Su Ryden, David Balmer, Cindy Acree, Nancy Todd and Karen Middleton. Please RSVP no later than 3 p.m. on Jan 8 to Janice at 303-344-1500.

For those interested in what is going on at Buckley Air Force Base, one of the area's major economic engines, the Annual State of the Base Luncheon will be held Dec. 13 at the Doubletree Hotel SE. Hosted jointly by the Aurora Chamber Defense Council and the Aurora Rotary Club, the luncheon will feature 460th Wing Commander Clint Crosier. He is expected to share the mission as well as economic information on the growing military installation. Doors open at 11:30 a.m., and the luncheon begins at noon. Cost of the lunch is $25, and sponsored tables are also available. Please RSVP by Jan. 12 to Janice at 303-344-1500. Registration is required.

Craig Ward
Chair

Dear Fellow Chamber Members,

As the Chamber Board, Staff and membership begin planning for 2010, many of you might ask what the Chamber's plan of action looks like for the next 12-18 months. I can honestly tell you that we are facing major policy challenges in areas such as health care, energy, secret ballots, government budget shortfalls, and the environment.

But no challenge is greater – or more important to our nation – than reviving the economy, restoring the 7 million jobs lost to the current recession, and creating the 13 million new jobs that will be needed over the next decade. The Aurora Chamber's plan will center on the Dream Big campaign of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. At this important point in our nation's history, it is essential that we embrace free enterprise to strengthen our economy for the long run.

Across Colorado, individuals are struggling to maintain and build their businesses, not only for themselves and their employees, but for the thousands of Coloradans who can't find jobs today – and the thousands who will need jobs tomorrow.

We can't do this alone! We need to create a political imperative, demanding that when any elected official makes a decision or casts a vote, that he or she stops to weigh its impact on the economic system that built our country and sustains the American Dream.

Chair's Letter

Let me sum it up:

First – Jobs: Working as partners with our work force centers, Arapahoe/Douglas and Adams County, we are involved in two new committees; the Healthcare Committee, which is working on entry level positions in the healthcare arena, and the Energy Committee, focusing on new environmental job opportunities.

Second – Jobs: Working with our military and department of defense partners, the Chamber Defense Council has been developing and supporting efforts to become home to new opportunities in the Cyber War efforts and the intelligence community. Our efforts to become a “Center of Excellence” in education for these new jobs are yielding returns. Many of you have worked your hearts out on this project.

Third – Choice: The Chamber is committed to fostering business to business buying among its members. Remember to always use your Chamber Membership Directory or go to the Website (www.aurorachamber.org) to find the products or services you need. Shopping at a fellow Chamber member's business ensures that our neighbors are employed. In addition, our efforts to communicate more effectively with members will continue to be enhanced through the newly-formed communications committee.

Fourth – Innovation: Free enterprise encourages small business start-ups. Almost anyone in Colorado can start a business if he or she really wants to. The barriers are low, the opportunities are endless, and if you fail – and many do – you can get up and try again.

Fifth – The American Dream: The American Dream would not exist without free enterprise. It is free enterprise that breathes life into the promise of Colorado, which is that a better life is always within our grasp and our best days are yet to come.

Dream Big.

retired after several decades with Wietz Construction.

Joining the Board for 2009-2010 are Tammy Fernandez with the University of Phoenix, Carol Gregory with The Medical Center of Aurora, Dave Gruber with Nortel Government Solutions, Erin Lilly with Kaiser Permanente and Jeff Thompson with the University of Colorado Hospital.

Over at Cherry Creek Schools, Mary Chesley joined John Barry at Aurora Public Schools as two of the most progressive superintendents in the State much to the delight of the business community, who understand the importance of a top-notch education to their future. In the state capitol, the City of Aurora joined with The Chamber for Aurora Day at the Capitol.

Then in March, the Chamber staff packed all their stuff – with the help of Graebel Van Lines, QSE Technology and Qwest—and made a flawless move to the new location on the third floor at 14305 E.

Alameda, just above the Aurora Sentinel. Even in the middle of the trek, Chamber programs never slowed down and not a single meeting was missed. In fact the Unsung Heroes Luncheon organized by the Women in Business Committee and sponsored by the Aurora Credit Union Alliance was a huge success. Winners were Denise Brockman of Fish City Grill and Diane Burridge with the Gateway Rotary Club. All the while, Chamber President Kevin Hougen with the help of the Government Affairs and Education Committee hammered away at the so called “Employee Free Choice Act” that undermines employee/employer relations and economic growth and recovery. It was a battle they would later win.

The biggest event of the year was the 54th Annual Chamber Awards Banquet. Winners included: Business for the Arts: Shadow Theatre, accepted by founder Jeffrey Nickelson; Humanitarian: Bob Waples, Rural Metro Ambulance Co.; Community Leadership: Tom Tobiasen, RTD Board of Directors; Chamber Leadership: Suzanne Pitrusu, Wells Fargo Bank; Small Business Person: Frank Loner, Chick-fil-A, Aurora; Business Person of the Year: Aagie Barber, Cherry Creek School Board and John Barry, Aurora Public Schools Superintendent; Business of the Year: Southlands; Man of the Year: Aurora Mayor Ed Tauer; and Woman of the Year: Cindy Kreutz, Spalding Rehabilitation Center.

At the event, Craig Ward with Padgett Business Services accepted the Board Chair gavel from Jo Snell, promising to keep The Chamber strong and healthy.

The Chamber jumped on the Social Media bandwagon with the help of Chamber Ambassador Scott Mueller of Mueller Time Designs who ran a series of seminars on how to use Facebook. He even set up an Aurora Chamber page.

The contributions of The Chamber to the veteran's community were noted when the United Veteran's Committee presented their Meritorious Service Award to Chamber President Kevin Hougen and Chamber Vice President George Peck. At the event, VA Secretary Eric Shinseki and Congressman Ed Perlmutter announced that $119 million had been approved by Congress to help build a new VA Hospital in Aurora. A few short months later, Shinseki returned to turn the first shovel of dirt at the hospital ground breaking. During the same time period, Pinnacol Assurance lauded The Chamber for their highly-successful safety program and presented a dividend check in the amount of $151,824 to those who had participated in the program.

The largest military event in the Aurora-Denver area took place in May when more than 600 people packed the Crowne Plaza Hotel to honor eleven young military troops from all branches of the service serving in the metro area. Sponsored by Northrop Grumman, the uplifting program featured Colorado Freedom Memorial founder Rick Crandall, and Air Force Space Command Deputy Commander Thomas Deppe. In addition to military honorees, Sheila Anthony from the City of Aurora was singled out for the prestigious Bob Cardenas Award.

As we moved into the summer, L'Oreal of Paris employees in Aurora threw a big birthday bash to celebrate their company's 150th year and the Allstate Insurance Team captured top honors in the area's most popular golf tourney, the Leadership Aurora Golf Tournament. Out at Buckley AFB, the 460th Space Wing welcomed a new commander, Col. Clint Crosier, and said farewell to Col. Wayne McGee. Also, the Aerospace Data Facility-Colorado got a new boss, Col. Steve Denker, who replaced Col. Dave Thompson. Chamber staffer Marci Maxwell moved up, taking the reins of the Parker Chamber.

The Business for the Arts Committee was active in organizing the Banks in Harmony Concert series bringing aboard two new sponsors, US Bank and the Better Business Bureau in addition to regulars Wells

Fargo, 1st Bank and Citywide. And the Chamber Board Retreat was held at the beautiful May Farms in rural Arapahoe County.

The fall season meant the Fox Arts Center Gala sponsored by the Aurora Credit Union Alliance, the Chamber Showcase at the Red Lion Hotel SE and the City of Aurora's Veteran's Salute sponsored by Spalding Rehabilitation Hospital. The Chamber also co-sponsored the popular Taste of Aurora with the Aurora Sentinel and the Sloan Awards Luncheon, at which The Medical Center of Aurora, University of Phoenix, Merrick & Company, Aurora Mental Health and Adams County Workforce Development were given national honors for their excellent workforce flexibility programs. And, of course, there were elections and The Chamber partnered with Aurora's KACT-TV8 and the Business and Professional Women for the annual Candidate's Forum and were on-hand to welcome new Aurora Council members Marcia Berzins, Melissa Miller and Barbara Cleland as well as new Centennial Mayor Cathy Noon to the community.

Despite a challenging economy, The Chamber continued their active support, involvement and leadership in the Eastern Metro area throughout the year.

Ribbon Cuttings

Handling the big cut – (left to right) Kevin Lewis, president; Marcelo Birckenstaedt, general manager, and Slawek and his brother Adam Pietraszek, owners and developers of the upscale hotel chain, cut the ribbon at the new Cambria Suites, located at 16001 E. 40th Circle. Cambria Suites is convenient to Denver International Airport, with rooms that are 25 percent larger than most hotel rooms. The hotel offers free airport transportation, free LAN and wireless Internet, and a 24-hour fitness center, along with many other amenities.

Open again – Gaylene Blake, manager of the Wal-Mart at 5650 S. Chambers Rd in Aurora, speaks to a group during their grand reopening of the store. The beautiful facility was reopened following a major renovation. Aurora City Councilman and Mayor Pro-tem Bob Broom was joined by a large crowd to mark the occasion.

Triple play – Executives and friends of the new Element Hotel by Westin are joined by the Aurora Chamber, the South Metro Chamber and the Greenwood Village Chamber to celebrate the opening of their new location in Lone Tree at 9985 Park Meadows Drive. Element Hotels by Westin are a new kind of hotel, ensuring that you have everything you need to be at your best – whether your stay is a quick weekend getaway or a weeks-long trip. A full kitchen in guest rooms, healthy food choices and a gym are just a few of the features that help to keep guests in balance.

A full stairway – Teri Karjala cuts the ribbon at the new location of Creative Counseling Center, at 6021 S. CU Reunion – A large crowd of friends, members and supporters gather with Fitzsimons Credit Union (a partnering Credit Union) CEO Sandy Neves (center), to cut the ribbon formally opening their beautiful new facility. There was plenty of help on-hand to manage the big scissors, including (left to right, center) Chairman of the Fitzsimons Credit Union Board Thomas Smith, Congressman Ed Perlmutter, Fitzsimons Credit Union CEO Neves, and Congressman Mike Coffman. The mission of the Fitzsimons Credit Union is to know its partners as individuals and to focus on their life-long financial needs: advise and advocate while always exceeding their expectations. COMMUNITY DAY

By Richard Charles
Cherry Creek Schools, STEM Center

On October 15, 2009, the 2009-10 Leadership Aurora class reconvened for their first session since the summer retreat at Winter Park. The focus of the day's events was to enhance our understanding of the city's economic issues, social concerns and non-profit community.

The day began with a breakfast reception at the Salvation Army. The class was addressed by the Colonel of the Salvation Army, who provided detailed information about the charitable work of the organization. Members of the class brought toys to support the Salvation Army's efforts.

The class then divided into seven teams. Each team was tasked with gathering information about two assigned organizations, including specific questions about funding sources, services and access to services.

The organizations included the Aurora Housing Authority, Lowry Family Center, Providers' Resource Clearinghouse, Arapahoe/Douglas Works!, Arc of Aurora, Boys & Girls Club, Mile High Council at Fitzsimons, AuMHC-Aurora Youth Options, Interfaith Task Force, CASA Advocates for Children, Friends of St. Andrew, Self Improvement Opportunities, DAVA (Downtown Aurora Visual Arts), and Morning Star Adult Day Care Program.

Leadership Aurora class members make masks for children at the Aurora YMCA during October's Community Day session.

The day was brought to a triumphant conclusion with skits by each group, highlighting the work of the two organizations they visited, followed by a leadership presentation by Debbie Lynch, director of Development and Administration for the Lupus

Foundation of Colorado.

Community Day was valuable, informative and heart-warming. In addition to providing the class with information about how these organizations impact the community, the experiences also served as a way to survey potential opportunities for class projects. I was overwhelmed by the many needs that go unmet in the community. We must support the work of these organizations so that we can continue to make Aurora a place to be proud of.

It was a busy and enlightening day!

Twice Bitten – Still Standing

by Ana-Christina Wadle
My Legacy Coaching, LLC

He was staring at me so intently, that it felt like his eyes were boring right through mine. He made no noise as he lunged for me, and rocketed into me with

"... there's no way he can bite my hand if he catches the end of the sleeve!"

a force that belied his size. When he grabbed me and shook me like a rag doll, all I could think was "Oh my Lord, what if this was a real attack?"

On November 19, 2009, Leadership Aurora had its "Police Day" session, during which we received impactful information about 911 dispatch, the gang unit, school resource officers, volunteer involvement, traffic enforcement, the SWAT team, and talked to the Arapahoe County bomb squad. We also experienced the force of the K-9 unit.

As I donned the 40 pound, ridiculously huge, protective padded suit, a few errant thoughts crossed my mind, including "WHAT in the world am I doing? Daaaaang! This dog is INTIMIDATING," and "I better keep my fists tucked up into the huge sleeve so that there's no way he can bite my hand if he catches the end of the sleeve!"

And then he slammed into me.

Fortunately, I was protected by the handler, who had the dog on a lead and who was issuing commands to both attack and to "stand still." I also was protected by another officer standing behind me, making sure I didn't get knocked over by the force of the attack.

Under the careful direction of his handler, this incredible animal saves police lives, and can also save the lives of suspects – as these dogs are so intimidating that some will surrender to them.

I learned hundreds of facts that day. The instructors educated, informed, and changed my perspective regarding many aspects of police duties. I commend our law enforcement teams and have a new and much deeper respect for what they do to "Serve and Protect."

The most important things I learned that day, though, were not the facts. The most important things I learned were to confront my fears; to try something new; and to shift my perspective to be able to see life differently through someone else's (in this case, the police officers') experiences.

I was reminded that sometimes life bites you, attacks you, knocks into you, and smashes into you. Sometimes, life is like that. When you're in the middle of that storm, consider confronting your fears and trying something new – and your perspective on that tough time will shift.

Ambassadors' Retreat

What do The Knoll, Samson, a mini golf course and llamas have in common?

They are all things that were on the list for the Picture Scavenger Hunt at the 2009 Ambassador Retreat at the YMCA of the Rockies in Estes Park.

The two day retreat in October offered the Chamber Ambassadors an opportunity to work together in team building activities such as the scavenger hunt and cooking meals, as well enjoying a beautiful fall weekend in the mountains.

The theme for the retreat was the "Essential Piece," as the ambassadors are an essential piece of the Chamber by actively promoting membership, and being involved in events, activities and committees. They serve as the eyes and ears of the Chamber in the communities in which they work and live.

The ambassadors are a group of active business people who are dedicated to building an even more successful Chamber.

If you are interested in applying to be a Chamber Ambassador, contact Mary Beth Sharp at 303-344-1500 or Marybeth.sharp@aurorachamber.org.
