Welcome from the Conference Chair Joshua Collins

Welcome to the 2025 Academy of Human Resource Development (AHRD) International Research Conference in the Americas! My name is Joshua Collins (he/him/his), and I am honored to serve as President-Elect of AHRD and Conference Chair for the 2025 and 2026 conferences. On behalf of the 2025 conference team — including Program Chair Bhagyashree Barhate, Proceedings Editor Yuanlu Niu, Associate Proceedings Editor Amin Alizadeh, Platform Administrator Kris Frady, and the numerous track chairs and associate track chairs, reviewers, and volunteers who made this event possible — I extend my heartfelt gratitude.

This year, we gather in Arlington, Virginia, to reflect on and contribute to the future of our field. The theme, Envisioning HRD's Legacy in 2055: Advocacy, Leadership, and Sustained Change, challenges us to consider the enduring impact of our work over the next three decades and beyond. As we continue to find ways to acknowledge and celebrate AHRD's 30th anniversary, which occurred in 2023, we also look forward with a shared vision for shaping organizations and communities through sustainable, human-centered development.

This forward-looking theme underscores the importance of addressing critical questions: How will emerging technologies and evolving organizational structures influence HRD? How do global political and cultural dynamics intersect with our work? How do we ensure that diverse voices and perspectives remain at the center of our efforts? These are the questions we will explore together, and this year's programming is designed to foster meaningful conversations, actionable insights, and opportunities for new collaborations.

This year's Town Hall Forum, titled Artificial Intelligence and Human Resources: New Frontiers and Recent Developments, invites the HRD community to explore the transformative intersection of artificial intelligence (AI) and HRD. Featuring a diverse panel of HR professionals and technology innovators, the forum will demystify AI's current applications in HRD while offering a forward-looking perspective on how it will reshape practice and research. Panelists bring global insights, practical applications, and the innovative mindsets needed to navigate the evolving landscape of AI.

Our keynote speaker, Dr. Rassheedah Watts, The Inclusive Community Architect™, will inspire us with her insights on creating systems that foster healthy group synergy and meaningful progress in diversity, equity, and inclusion. With extensive experience across both private and public sectors, Dr. Watts brings a transformational approach to leadership that emphasizes the importance of valuing, seeing, and hearing every individual. Her work offers a practical perspective on the power of connection and inclusion to drive thriving organizations and communities. Known as an "activator," Dr. Watts empowers individuals and groups to engage with the transformations they deserve in their personal and professional lives. Her keynote promises to challenge us to think deeply about how HRD can cultivate more inclusive, connected, and equitable workplaces.

We are also thrilled to continue several beloved conference traditions, such as the Future Scholars and Leaders Colloquium, led by Quincy Brown and Stephanie Sisco, and the AHRD Ambassador Program, co-chaired by Nicole Dillard and Kevin Rose.

This year, I am proud to introduce a new conference role: Tomika Greer will serve as the inaugural Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement. This role is dedicated to supporting a positive conference experience by providing a confidential resource for attendees seeking guidance on interpersonal or professional matters related to the event. Greer's work reflects our commitment to fostering an inclusive and welcoming environment.

In addition to our formal programming, I encourage you to take advantage of opportunities to network, learn, and explore. This past year, AHRD re-imagined Special Interest Group (SIG) membership, no longer limiting AHRD members to a certain number of SIGs they can join. Therefore, at this year's conference we are experimenting with moving away from holding formal SIG meetings throughout the conference and instead have introduced the AHRD Special Interest Group Mixer as a space to explore the breadth of AHRD's SIGs in one setting. This event, scheduled for Friday afternoon, offers a unique opportunity to connect with new groups, broaden your involvement, and engage in fresh conversations across multiple areas of interest.

Finally, I invite you to join the AHRD Welcome and Committee Networking Event, where you can meet members of the Antiracism Committee, Nominations and Election Committee, Executive Committee, and Board of Directors. This reception (formerly the Welcome Reception) offers a chance to build connections, learn about initiatives, and discover ways to engage with AHRD leadership, all in a welcoming and relaxed environment.

AHRD has been an integral part of my professional journey since I attended my first conference as a master's student in 2011. Over the years, this community has provided mentorship, collaboration, and inspiration, shaping my career and reinforcing my belief in the power of HRD to drive meaningful change. As we gather this year, I hope this conference serves as a space for innovation, connection, and growth. Let us envision together how our collective work can continue to advance advocacy, leadership, and sustained change for decades to come. Thank you for being part of this journey — I look forward to connecting with you throughout the conference.

Introducing the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement

This year, we are pleased to introduce a new conference role: the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement. This role serves as a neutral, confidential, and independent resource to enhance the conference experience for all attendees. In collaboration with the AHRD Ambassador program, this role supports an inclusive, welcoming, and respectful environment by providing guidance on and being the point of contact for interpersonal and professional concerns related to attendance at the annual conference.

Tomika Greer will serve as the inaugural Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement. Greer is Assistant Professor, Associate

Department Chair, and Program Coordinator of HRD at University of Houston. She earned a B.S. in Chemical Engineering, M.Ed. in Instructional Technology, and Ph.D. in HRD from Texas A&M University. In her research, she critically examines postsecondary education, job transitions, telework, and work-life integration with a focus on helping women and marginalized groups manage and develop thriving and sustainable careers. Greer has served in multiple roles at previous AHRD Conferences, including Track Chair Editor, Graduate Student Colloquium Coordinator, and Conference Ambassador. Additionally, she served on the AHRD Board of Directors from 2018 to 2024. She is the recipient of the 2023 Laura Bierema Excellence in Critical HRD Award and the 2023 AHRD Book of the Year Award for her co-authored book entitled Human Resource Development: Critical Perspectives and Practices.

The table below is intended to provide guidance to conference attendees regarding the scope of issues that are and are not appropriate for the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement. To initiate a conversation about an appropriate concern, you can either locate Greer throughout the AHRD conference or you may email ahrdengage@gmail.com.

Issues appropriate for the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement
Concerns about behavior	that might conflict with AHRD’s Standards on Ethics and Integrity.
Perceived exclusionary or unwelcoming behavior	that impacts the conference experience.
Requests for neutral facilitation	to support resolution in cases of interpersonal misunderstandings or disagreements.
Interpersonal conflicts	that arise from differing expectations, communication styles, or perceptions.
Navigational advice	on managing complex or sensitive professional relationships within the conference setting.

Example case of issues appropriate for the Senior Ambassador

During a panel discussion, two attendees, Arlene and Dan, have a disagreement over a comment made by one of the speakers. Arlene feels that Dan's response to her question was dismissive and exclusionary, leaving her feeling unwelcome and uncomfortable. She approaches the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement to discuss her feelings about the interaction and to seek guidance on how to address it constructively. In their conversation, Arlene also shares concerns that Dan's response may conflict with AHRD's Standards on Ethics and Integrity, as it appeared to undermine the inclusive tone the conference promotes. The Senior Ambassador listens to Arlene's perspective, validates her feelings, and helps her explore options for resolution, including potential approaches for engaging in a respectful dialogue with Dan. By offering a neutral and confidential space, the Senior Ambassador supports Arlene in managing a complex interpersonal conflict while emphasizing AHRD's commitment to respectful and inclusive interactions.

Issues not appropriate for the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement

Administrative or logistical complaints (e.g., scheduling, room assignments, or accommodations).

Organizational policy or structural issues that go beyond interpersonal concerns (e.g., feedback on AHRD's overall conference policies or structure).

Requests for specific disciplinary action or other punitive measures.

Vendor or exhibitor disputes unrelated to interpersonal dynamics.

Public communication issues, such as social media posts or PR concerns, not directly related to in-conference interpersonal interactions.

Example case of issues not appropriate for the Senior Ambassador

During a workshop, an attendee named Jake becomes frustrated with his assigned presentation slot, feeling that it has negatively impacted his visibility among peers and potential collaborators. Jake approaches the Senior Ambassador for Conference Engagement, hoping they can advocate on his behalf to secure a more favorable time. The Senior Ambassador explains that their role does not extend to operational complaints such as scheduling or room assignments, nor do they have the authority to advocate for individual presentation adjustments. Instead, they suggest that Jake provide feedback to the appropriate conference organizers. This preserves the Senior Ambassador's focus on interpersonal and ethical matters rather than structural or administrative issues.

Town Hall Forum

Artificial Intelligence and Human Resources: New Frontiers and Recent Developments

Thursday, February 20 | 1:45 – 3:30pm | Salons ABCHJK

The 2025 AHRD Town Hall Forum invites the HRD community to explore the dynamic intersection of artificial intelligence and HRD. With the emerging trends in AI, this Town Hall aims to demystify the current applications of AI in HRD while offering a forward-looking perspective on its potential to reshape the practice and research in this field.

Bringing together HR professionals and technology innovators, the forum explore the transformative power of AI in redefining HRD practices, fostering strategic decision-making, and driving workforce development. We hope that the insights and experiences shared by the panelists will inspire you to engage in relevant and cutting-edge research related to AI in terms of workforce development, organizational readiness, and ethical considerations. The Town Hall aims to equip you to navigate the evolving research landscape at the intersection of HRD and AI with confidence.

Jerry Rhoads is a doctoral candidate in the Human Organizational Learning (HOL) program at George Washington University. His research focuses on the critical intersection of technology and society, explicitly emphasizing AI ethics and bias mitigation. His dissertation topic, Balancing Code and Culture: A Socio-Technical Systems Approach to AI Bias Mitigation in AI Design Practices, explores the complex interplay between technical and social factors that influence AI development through the lens of Socio-Technical Systems (STS) theory.

STS theory, which examines the interconnectedness of social and technical systems, provides a valuable framework for understanding the challenges of AI bias. By recognizing the influence of organizational culture, team dynamics, and other social factors on AI development, STS theory highlights the need for a holistic approach to bias mitigation that goes beyond technical solutions.

In his day, Jerry is a Solutions Architect at Microsoft, and he leverages his technical expertise to build and deploy AI solutions for many of Microsoft's partners and customers. His industry experience complements his academic research, allowing him to bridge the gap between theory and practice.

In this empowering keynote, Dr. Rassheedah Watts will guide you through the essential components of effective leadership in today's diverse and evolving landscape. You will learn how to cultivate the courage necessary to lead with conviction, focusing on allyship, antiracism, and inclusion in your organization and professional life. This session will challenge you to act as a justice-focused change agent, offering critical insights and practical strategies for navigating complex issues of equity and inclusion. Prepare to be inspired, challenged, and equipped with the tools to step up as a courageous leader who can drive meaningful, lasting change.

Dr. Rassheedah Watts, The Inclusive Community Architect®, is an award-winning Diversity Strategist and dynamic keynote speaker renowned for her ability to transform conversations on equity and justice into actionable change. Rassheedah is the author of two books, How To Be An Ally And Create Inclusion Using The A.C.A. Pillars: A 3-Step Approach To Effective Allyship and Black Womb Dialogues: A Poetic Intersection of Womanhood and Blackness. She also produced and hosted the Diversity Minute televised series with CCX Media, currently viewable on YouTube.

Over the last decade, Rassheedah's successfully helped organizations build stronger connected communities. Through her leadership in implementing an effective portfolio of inclusion-based initiatives, she successfully led an organization in achieving its first national diversity award in its 50-year history. In 2020 she led the effort to establish the first community college nationally designated Truth, Racial healing, Transformation Center in the state of Minnesota. In 2022, Rassheedah earned the distinction of recruitment into the United States Speaker Program, where she traveled to Pakistan and Scotland in partnership with U.S. embassies and consulates to promote community inclusion and collective healing.

With a passion for activating others on topics of workplace inclusion, gender equity, allyship, racial justice and healing, Rassheedah works with organizations and individuals to build their capacity for upholding sustainable change. Known for her ability to connect deeply with honest and timely messages, her mission is clear: to activate courageous change agents who will leave a positive impact in our world.

Introduction of Special Interest Groups

Be sure to attend the AHRD Special Interest Group Mixer Friday, February 21, 1:30 – 2:30p.m. On the following pages, you will find information about each SIG, provided by current SIG leadership.

China HRD SIG

The China HRD SIG is a platform dedicated to advancing research and development in Human Resource Development (HRD) within China's unique socio-economic and cultural context. Recognizing China's rapid transformation into a global economic powerhouse, the SIG bridges theoretical HRD frameworks with practical applications tailored to the Chinese landscape. Its mission is to foster collaboration among scholars, practitioners, and policymakers to explore and disseminate research that transforms Chinese organizations and their workforce. Our diverse membership spans across the United States, Mainland China, Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, Taiwan, and beyond.

SIG Purpose

The AHRD China HRD Special Interest Group is to:

- Lead HRD research in the above defined scope;
- Form a network of researchers and practitioners who have interests in China HRD research and practice;
- Advance and contribute to international HRD from the case of China and Chinese cultural impact.

The group encompasses a wide range of activities, including conducting empirical research, organizing workshops and conferences, and publishing findings in specialized journals, to support the mission and objectives of the AHRD board.

SIG Vision

The China HRD SIG's vision is to maximize the influence of China HRD research in the overall HRD theoretical development, policies, and practices. By emphasizing China-specific HRD strategies and practices, China SIG seeks to contribute to the global body of HRD knowledge while ensuring that the insights gained are deeply rooted in the realities of the Chinese context.

Critical HRD and Social Justice Perspectives SIG

The Critical HRD and Social Justice Perspectives Special Interest Group provides a space in the Academy for the interrogation of dominant theory and practice, with the aim to advance diversity, incite meaningful change, and promote a more equitable and just society. The Critical SIG, as it is commonly called, has also become a place where AHRD members can raise critical consciousness and build solidarity among interrelated struggles against injustice.

Currently, the SIG is co-chaired by Drs. Chang-kyu Kwon (University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign) and Stephanie Sisco (University of Minnesota). As elected members of the SIG, they support the creation of critical knowledge and scholarship within the Academy of HRD. With the assistance of the steering committee, SIG leaders are also responsible for facilitating professional development initiatives and providing opportunities for member engagement. As we move forward, we aim to be intentional about how critical approaches to HRD are reflected in practice and contribute to meaningful social change. We cordially invite those who share this commitment to join our SIG! We offer a community dedicated to addressing dysfunction and defying oppressive systems.

Graduate Student SIG

The Graduate Student SIG aims to support graduate students in HRD programs and provide a professional home and community for AHRD graduate student members.

The Graduate Student SIG's vision is to create a vibrant, inclusive, and intellectually stimulating community where graduate students in HRD can collaborate, innovate, and grow. We strive to foster an environment that encourages academic excellence, professional development, and personal well-being. Through our initiatives, we aim to empower AHRD graduate student members to become leaders in HRD, make meaningful contributions to society, and form lifelong connections that transcend the boundaries of academia.

The Graduate Student SIG works to:

- Offer support for research, publishing, postdoctoral job searches, and career development of graduate students.
- Facilitate interaction between its members by organizing activities and events that contribute to the growth of graduate students.
- Collaborate on research projects focused on the learning and development of graduate students.
- Promote publications and conference contributions of graduate students.

- Expand AHRD membership by actively recruiting graduate students.

The Graduate Student SIG's key tasks are to:

- Provide peer mentoring programs to facilitate the exchange of resources, information, and expertise among graduate students
- Host a webinar to help graduate students' career development and enhance their visibility.
- Hold regular virtual writing meetings to foster writing habits and productivity.
- Establish and maintain a SIG listserv to foster networking, discussion, and learning for the SIG members.
- Establish and maintain a SIG website within the AHRD website to promote SIG visibility and awareness.

Health Professions Education SIG

HPE SIG is a group bridging and applying human resource development (HRD) with health professions education (HPE) including, but not limited to, medical education, nursing education, emergency medical technician training, veterinary medical education, hospital management, and other health-related workforce development research areas.

HPE SIG at AHRD Aims to:

- Promote HPE research and practice agendas among AHRD members and members in related fields.
- Collaborate on HPE research projects with HRD and non-HRD practitioners.
- Exchange resources.
- Expand AHRD membership with HPE professionals.
- Become a professional home within AHRD for those in healthcare.

Introduction of Special Interest Groups

Monthly Zoom Meetings:

- Every Second Tuesday at 8 am Central Time, USA in even months (June, August, etc.) and 5 pm Central Time, USA in odd months (July, September, etc.)
Meeting ID: 895 0855 2410
Passcode: 040548

Highlights of SIG Activities:

- Show & Tell: A space for students and scholars to share and present research projects, ideas, literature reviews, and other topics for collegial feedback.
- AHRD HPE Focus Session: Maintaining a continued presence at AHRD by submitting focus sessions that bridge HPE and HRD.
- HPE Theory, Practice, and Knowledge Mapping: Constructing a living 'knowledge bridge' of resources from previous Show & Tell themes, HPE conferences, and other opportunities to write on health professions theory and practice.
- Intentional Collaboration: Working with other AHRD SIGs, such as providing a webinar spotlighting a scholar-practitioner in health professions.

Students, practitioners, and scholars are welcome to join AHRD HPE SIG! For questions or suggestions, please contact:

- Dea Robinson (trobin33@msudenver.edu),
Chair
- Andrew Lee (slee26@siumed.edu),
Chair-Elect

HRD Theory SIG

The HRD Theory Special Interest Group (SIG) is a dynamic community of scholars and practitioners focused on the theoretical foundations of Human Resource Development

(HRD). This group explores a wide range of theories, including their development, critical examination, and philosophical underpinnings within the social sciences.

The purpose of the HRD Theory SIG is to provide a platform for scholars and practitioners to meet, discuss, debate, collaborate, and share information related to HRD theory. The vision is to foster innovative leaders in HRD and advance rigorous theoretical developments in the field.

Key activities include contributing to HRD scholarship, increasing interest and understanding of HRD theory, and developing leaders from diverse theoretical and philosophical backgrounds. The group also aims to create a supportive atmosphere for discussing, debating, and disseminating knowledge about HRD theory and scholarship.

The SIG coordinates activities at the AHRD International Research Conference in the Americas, maintains a listserv for networking and discussion, and promotes visibility through a dedicated website. Members are responsible for creating opportunities for information sharing, participating in meetings and working groups, recruiting new members, and enhancing the debate on HRD scholarship and theory.

Looking ahead, the HRD Theory SIG plans to host events to foster dialogue and cultivate scholarly proposals, using platforms like AHRD.org Groups, Microsoft Teams, and LinkedIn to enhance engagement and collaboration. For more information or to get involved, members are encouraged to contact the chairperson, Rose Baker, and to attend the HRD Theory SIG meeting.

Introduction of Special Interest Groups

International HRD SIG

The International HRD SIG is a network of scholars and practitioners who are interested in international and cross-cultural HRD research and practice. The purpose of the International HRD SIG is to provide opportunities for scholars and practitioners to network each other for the advancement of international and cross-cultural HRD research. The International HRD SIG's vision is to be the center (i.e., a research-focused community of practice) for HRD researchers who have a genuine interest in international and cross-cultural HRD practices. The International HRD SIG welcomes the participation of individuals from all over the world who are interested in enhancing opportunities to foster international and cross-cultural HRD research. More importantly, we are currently recruiting the SIG Steering Committee. If you are interested in joining the team, please contact the current Chairperson (Dae Seok Chai: daeseokchai@tamu.edu).

Korea HRD SIG

The Korea HRD Special Interest Group (Korea SIG) acts as a vibrant network for scholars and practitioners dedicated to HRD research and practice both within Korea and in the global context of Korean HRD. Established in 2016, our SIG comprises a diverse membership engaged in a wide range of scholarly and practical activities.

Primary Objectives of Our SIG:

- Advance scholarly work in organizational and national HRD in Korea through research publications.
- Enrich the international HRD discourse with perspectives from East Asian, particularly Korean, culture.

- Build a strong network for individuals interested in HRD research and practice in Korea, thereby fostering collaborative research.
- Establish partnerships with HRD researchers, practitioners, and academic institutions in Korea to facilitate scholarly interactions, meetings, and educational initiatives in HRD.

Join Us: If you are an AHRD member with an interest in HRD research or activities related to Korea, we invite you to join the Korea SIG. Korean heritage is not a prerequisite for membership.

Korea-Sig Sponsored AHRD Team-up Grant: In support of our objectives, we offer a Team-up Grant annually to all AHRD members, designed to:

- Promote the formation of multi-institutional research teams for enhanced collaboration.
- Direct research efforts towards global, cross-cultural, and innovative technological issues.
- Assist junior faculty, practitioners, and doctoral students in finding suitable research mentors.
- Motivate senior and experienced faculty to mentor emerging scholars.

Contact Us: For any inquiries or additional information, please contact Shinhee Jeong, Chair of the Korea SIG, at sjeong@uttyler.edu.

Leadership SIG

The Leadership Special Interest Group (SIG) is a network of Human Resource Development (HRD) scholars and practitioners focused on advancing their knowledge, research and expertise, around leadership development. The SIG's primary goal is to foster collaboration and organize activities that support the development of leadership in individuals, groups/teams, and organizations in the field of HRD.

Introduction of Special Interest Groups

Our vision is to become the source of cutting-edge leadership development research, resources, and practices. The SIG does this by engaging its AHRD members in dialogue and collaborative efforts to leverage leadership in the 21st century and beyond.

The Leadership SIG's activities include:

- Organizing activities and events centered on leadership development.
- Facilitating the expansion knowledge and expertise in leadership theory, research, and practice.
- Supporting learning among Leadership SIG members and others in the Academy.
- Providing a forum for networking, exchange of ideas, and mentoring of emerging researchers and practitioners.

Our membership, which includes AHRD students, academics, and professionals with an interest in leadership development, are responsible for:

- Creating opportunities for information sharing and open discussion of SIG issues.
- Participating in meetings and other SIG activities.
- Recruiting new SIG members.
- Communicating with each other about key events.

Whether you're a scholar, practitioner, or student, we invite you to join the Leadership SIG and become a part of this dynamic network dedicated to advancing leadership development.

Leadership SIG Chairs

Omaima Hajjami and Alicia Piechowiak

Qualitative Inquiry SIG

The Qualitative Inquiry Special Interest Group (QISIG) was founded to foster increased interest in the qualitative methods employed in HRD scholarship and practice. The purpose of the QISIG is to provide a forum for members of AHRD to engage in information and idea exchange and discuss issues important to qualitative researchers, consumers of qualitative research, practitioners, and AHRD members. The QISIG's vision is to be a community of scholars and practitioners dedicated to fostering and conducting substantive, relevant, rigorous, and high-quality qualitative research. We aim to provide opportunities for knowledge sharing, learning, discussion, and collaboration. QISIG members come together for webinars, academic discussions, and learning opportunities to further their understanding of qualitative research.

Quantitative Research Methods SIG

The Quantitative Research Methods SIG (Quant SIG) serves as a vital hub within the AHRD community, fostering scholarly dialogue and professional development around the application of quantitative methods in HRD. The Quant SIG unites individuals dedicated to advancing quantitative research methods through the exchange of knowledge, skills, and innovative approaches. We warmly welcome HRD scholars and practitioners who are passionate about learning and applying rigorous and innovative quantitative research methods.

The Quant SIG continues to introduce new initiatives for HRD scholars and practitioners. For example, we organize a bi-weekly Book Club each semester, with this academic year's theme focusing on Advanced Quantitative Methods for the Modern Workplace.

Introduction of Special Interest Groups

Additionally, we plan to launch bi-monthly empirical article discussions, offering members opportunities to explore and learn from newly published research articles with a particular emphasis on the quantitative methods employed. These initiatives are designed to enhance the rigor of HRD research while aligning with AHRD's broader strategic goals.

We also warmly invite Quant SIG members who are interested in actively contributing to the SIG to take a more active role in shaping the future of the Quant SIG. In 2024, Sangok Yoo joined as a co-chair of the SIG, while John R. Turner plans to step down after AHRD 2025. This year, the Quant SIG plans to focus on strengthening its governance for long-term sustainability, including implementing a systematic succession plan.

Scholar-Practitioner SIG

The Scholar-Practitioner Special Interest Group (SIG) within the Academy of Human Resource Development (AHRD) aims to advance the integration of research and practice in the HRD field. Its mission is to strengthen the vital connection between scholarly inquiry and practical application by fostering collaboration among scholar-practitioners, academics, researchers, and practitioners. The SIG strives to ensure that evidence-based research informs organizational practices while practical insights contribute to academic research and theory development.

To achieve these objectives, the SIG provides a collaborative platform for members to exchange ideas, build partnerships, and address critical and evolving challenges in HRD from the perspective of scholarly practice. The SIG actively promotes meaningful dialogue, supports actionable research, and facilitates the testing and application of theories in real-world settings.

The SIG is currently revitalizing its efforts through a series of initiatives, including organizing webinars, launching collaborative research projects, and leveraging digital platforms to enhance member engagement and communication. By offering practical resources, fostering networking opportunities, and creating spaces for collaboration, the SIG empowers members to explore and strengthen the intersection of research and practice. These efforts contribute directly to AHRD's mission of "leading the profession through research." By advancing HRD scholarship and addressing the evolving needs of the workplace, the SIG serves as a catalyst for progress in the HRD field.

South Asia SIG

The mission of the South Asia Special Interest Group (SIG) is to foster academic and professional collaboration among students, scholars, and practitioners from South Asian countries. Our goal is to understand, explore, and develop evidence-based solutions to the challenges facing human resource development (HRD) in the region. We aim to achieve this through the following objectives:

- Share, discuss, and identify research priorities.
- Build an inclusive community where students, scholars, and practitioners from South Asia feel welcomed and included at AHRD.
- Advance research and professional collaborations among scholars and practitioners.

Introduction of Special Interest Groups

- Facilitate professional development by organizing guest speakers on emergent HRD topics.

Virtual HRD, Technology & Distance Learning SIG

The origins of the Virtual HRD, Technology & Distance Learning (VHRD) SIG began over fifteen years ago and has attracted a network of numerous Human Resource Development scholars, practitioners, and graduate students who seek to enhance their research, knowledge and expertise in the area of technology-related development.

The purpose of the Virtual HRD, Technology & Distance Learning (VHRD) SIG is to facilitate interaction and collaboration and to organize activities that support the development of technology-related skills at the individual, group, team, and organization levels in the field of Human Resource Development. In addition, it focuses on upskilling and cultivating expertise in knowledge management, and learning in its many forms (i.e., formal and informal learning, adult learning, social movement learning, and organizational learning).

The Virtual HRD, Technology & Distance Learning (VHRD) SIG's vision is to be known as the leading provider of the most current Virtual HRD, technology, and distance learning research, including resources and processes that provide opportunities to engage AHRD members in dialogue and collaborative efforts to leverage technology for increasing learning in the 21st century around artificial intelligence, data analytics, social presence, virtual tools, virtual team building, data collection, data security, and technology privacy.

Workforce Diversity and Inclusion SIG

The Workforce Diversity and Inclusion Special Interest Group (WDI SIG) is a network of scholars, educators, practitioners, and graduate students who are interested in advancing the practice of workforce diversity and engaging in research that promotes equitable and inclusive workplace environments. Workforce diversity is commonly viewed as an organizational goal for seeing and appreciating the multiple forms of difference that exist in work settings and ensuring an inclusive environment. While the WDI SIG strategically adopted action plan objectives in its organizing charter that supports the practice of workforce diversity and inclusion in work settings, the new challenge is ensuring that goal is not abandoned.

The WDI SIG contributes to the research and practice of human resource development (HRD) on several levels. First, practitioners who work in positions affiliated with diversity and inclusion are well positioned to partner with organizational groups (e.g. employee resource groups) or other employee-led advocacy groups to serve the interests of under-represented workforce populations. Second, WDI SIG members who are instructors of human resource development education programs are well positioned to create programs and curricula that prepare the future workforce for a variety of diversity and inclusion roles. Finally, the WDI SIG contributes to the professional development of its members through collaboration, information sharing, and informal social interaction.

The WDI SIG is currently co-chaired by Marilyn Y. Byrd and Chaunda L. Scott.
