

Robbin E. Caruso is an Equity Partner of Prager Metis CPAs, a member of Prager Metis International Group, and Co-Partner In Charge of their National Tax Controversy practice. Robbin has been practicing in the accounting industry for over 30 years.

She specializes in complex tax resolution, planning and compliance matters for individuals, fiduciaries, and businesses. Robbin's passion for her work shows through in her dedication to both clients and staff. Utilizing her experience, she represents clients with various federal and state tax controversy resolution matters, including tax audits, foreign filing issues, offers in compromise, voluntary disclosures, passport revocations, and negotiating payment agreements. She also oversees accounting and tax planning matters for her high-net-worth clients.

Robbin is an active member of the AICPA, NJCPA, AAA-CPA, ABA, Forbes Finance Council and various charitable organizations. She is currently serving in her 6th year as the Chair of the American Academy of Attorney-CPAs Taxation Liaison Committee and represents the group monthly before the IRS's National Public Liaison at Practitioner Meetings. She serves (served) on various boards and finance committees, inclusive of the Prager Metis CPAs' Advisory Board and Canyon Creek Condominium Association. Robbin graduated summa cum laude from Kean University, where she later taught as an adjunct professor for nine (9) years.

Robbin is a proud recipient of a 2022 NJCPA Ovation Award in the Impact Category in recognition of her service during COVID in developing and sharing her expertise on tax relief with the community and through numerous talks sponsored by New Jersey Business & Industry Association. She regularly presents on webinars and at educational conferences to peers and the community, and has served on panels for Business Insider, the NY BAR, NJSBA and other professional organizations. In 2023, Robbin became a member of the Forbes Finance Council, where she appreciates the opportunity to share her knowledge and expertise on tax planning, compliance, and tax resolution with the Forbes audience.

Robbin is active with a number of non-profit and charitable organizations including the Prager Metis Charitable Foundation; the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society; Rotary International, Inc.; Make A Smile Foundation; and Alzheimer's Association. In her free time, she enjoys hiking, biking, skiing, ballroom dance, entertaining, and especially loves all fiber arts.
