HISTORY

IN 1827, HENRY DODGE, HIS FAMILY, AND ABOUT 40 MINERS began what would become the city of Dodgeville. Dodge made a pact with the local Winnebago Indian leaders so he could build a cabin and smelter. The original community was comprised of three separate settlements: “Dodgeville,” “Dirty Hollow” and “Minersville” Dodgeville, which was named after Dodge, grew slowly during its early years. It was incorporated as a village in the 1840s. Later a small “war” was fought with Mineral Point over which community would become the seat of Iowa County. At the time, Mineral Point was the seat, but Dodgeville residents felt they should have it. Dodgeville eventually won the “war” and Wisconsin’s oldest working county courthouse. Dodgeville then saw a population boom, and it became a center for mining. Miners from England flooded the city, and the area flourished. British and Cornish architecture is still visible in the city today. Source: Wikipedia

ATTRACTIONS

THE CITY OF DODGEVILLE is geographically located among sandstone bluffs, steep hills, and gently rolling farmlands. The surrounding area is referred to as “unglaciated” because it was untouched by the glaciers that shaped much of the region’s topography. It is also referred to as the “driftless region” because the absence of glaciers meant that no “drift” (or accumulated rock and soil) was left behind. Many people simply refer to this area as the “Uplands.” By any name, it’s no exaggeration to say that the surrounding area is a feast for the eyes with its rugged rock outcroppings, wildflower meadows and prairies, wooded hillsides, lakes and streams, and rolling farmlands. The area’s natural beauty is not all that Dodgeville has to offer. Visit our many attractions that will awe anyone at any age. So pack your things, bring grandma, grandpa, and the kids for an adventure the whole family will enjoy.

Unearth the significant lead and zinc mining heritage of Wisconsin and get a taste of life as a miner. Nearly 100 years later, this collection of stone and log buildings became known as the famous Pendarvis House restaurant, served a traditional Cornish meal. THINKING OF RELOCATING?

DODGEVILLE IS A SMALL CITY WITH A BIG HEART AND SOUL—all nestled in the gently rolling hills of southwest Wisconsin. Recreation opportunities are abundant and attract outdoor enthusiasts with many different interests. While the history of Dodgeville is rich and colorful, the community is dynamic and it is large enough to offer the perks of a vibrant city and small enough to breathe of a slower and more relaxed lifestyle.

HOW DO YOU FIT?

The great adventure of moving also brings the daunting task of adapting to a new environment and finding how you fit into the community. The Dodgeville Area Chamber of Commerce has a “Welcome Neighbor” program for those who have just moved to the area. Simply call the Chamber to set up a time to stop by and pick up a Welcome Neighbor Tote. This gift from the business community is filled with information, small tokens and lots of well wishes from your new neighbors.

The Dodgeville Area Chamber of Commerce is located a block north of the courthouse on Iowa Street. Visitors and locals alike are invited to stop into the Visitor Information Center to browse the extensive selection of brochures and printed materials. To help you connect with local businesses, there is a Business and Service Organizations Center displaying business cards, flyers, brochures and lots of information to help you get settled. There is also an area dedicated for displaying details about events and other local happenings.
