

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR CEO

Where do we go from here?

We do understand that across all sectors, every business will face individual challenges as our nation begins the journey to recovery, while still facing the public health threat of the virus.

Consumers and/or employees may be cautious about being in an enclosed space with others, regardless of the safety and health protocols in place in the County and State.

Here at the Chamber we are navigating this new environment along with you and this is where we stand today:

- After discussions with our Executive Committee, our board and committee meetings have started to be hybrid (some participants in person and others virtually)
- After consulting our staff, our office employees have a choice of wearing a mask if they are vaccinated and must still wear a mask if not vaccinated and not distanced in their private office
- Mixers will soon be moving back to in person, and we are navigating ways to hold them hybrid
- Business HQ - Flex Work space is now opening for clients after we discuss our office protocols
- Our office is open to our members and general public to meet with staff and we are considering group meetings on a case by case basis

Creating our reopening plan has required a tremendous amount of internal assessment, and we take into consideration that we will have to be flexible based on situations that we cannot control.

We appreciate that you will have to do the same. Guidelines are not clear. Public expectations and opinions often differ, and it appears that we are now left to make these important decisions on our own.
