Letter from the President

The New York State legislative session gaveled out a bit late this year ending in the early morning hours of June 20th. As sessions go there's always some good and some bad, this one was not a particularly great win for businesses, particularly those upstate, and more particularly for the Fulton Montgomery Region.

I do have to say that many of our priorities were achieved, including the Chamber's efforts to make the property tax cap permanent, our struggle to prevent the passage of a very costly prevailing wage expansion, and efforts taken to prevent the creation of a hugely costly state-sponsored single payer healthcare system.

Unfortunately, many of the agenda items pushed by mainly downstate representatives did pass, including a farm bill that will further financially stress our already struggling upstate farms, large and small; new energy regulations that are sure to make the energy bills of all New Yorkers, businesses as well as families — much higher; and new upstate rent regulations that are sure to increase costs for upstate property owners while also creating more disincentives for developers considering new project creation (keep in mind that these new regulations are patterned after those in New York City).

As I said earlier, there were some wins for our businesses, ie. prevailing wage and single payer healthcare pushback, as well as the tax cap legislation. And in regulatory reform for business there was good news in that legislation was passed that now allows for forgiveness for a business with a first time regulatory violation. It's a small step, but one in the right direction.

Over the coming months, I will continue to inform our members of concerns regarding negative legislation and onerous new regulations coming down the pike. We will continue to take action to fight in the best interests of our members and engage with our lawmakers to share the needs of the business community.

If your business has any concerns or needs please feel free to contact me to discuss these issues.

Always remember, the Fulton Montgomery Regional Chamber of Commerce is the leading voice of business in the region providing advocacy, resources and solutions for our members.

Antiques Vendors Invited to Sell at First Local Festival

Antique and collectible dealers are invited to sell their wares during the inaugural Southern Adirondack Antiques and Collectibles Festival, scheduled for Labor Day weekend.

The festival will round out the summer's antique events, which include a number of annual shows at regional venues including Washington County Fairgrounds, Round Lake, Madison-Bouckville and others.

The 2019 event marks the first time a festival of this kind has been planned in Fulton County. It is sponsored by Fulton County, NY and the Fulton Montgomery Regional Chamber of Commerce. The show will be held outdoors at the Fulton County, NY Airport, 160 Airport Road, Johnstown, and organizers have a goal of securing at least 60 vendors. Single outdoor booths will be 20' x 22', and double and triple booth spaces are also available.

Lowest Unemployment in Decades

Job figures continued to rise in April, officially bringing unemployment to its lowest in 50 years— 3.6%, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

Primary job gains occurred in the health and business services sectors, with respectable growth in construction as well.

With over 150,000 jobs being added each month, on average, employment growth shows no signs of slowing down.

However, despite this upward trend, experts caution to expect more modest job creation over the next few months.

Growth by the Numbers

Unemployment fell across all categories tracked by the BLS.

Notably, unemployment rates for women and Hispanics dropped to record lows for the first time since 1953 and 1973, respectively.

But not all workers are feeling the economic gains.

Long-term unemployment is still high, and the number of part-time workers looking to work full-time remains steady, according to experts.

Employer Takeaway

The labor market is tightening up, but it's not tapped out. This means now is the time to attract talent and retain your current workforce.

Frank's Gun & Tackle to Expand Product Lines, Gain Parking in New Site

After 35 years at its existing location, Frank's Gun & Tackle Shop is moving to a newly remodeled and much larger facility.

Owner John Havlick said, "We still will be the Frank's that everyone grew up with. Nothing will change except our location. Still the same friendly faces, still the great pricing and still the top notch customer service — just in a bigger building."

The new location will be just one mile from the old store, in the building that formerly housed the "Brick Oven" restaurant, at 3831 State Highway 30 in Vail Mills.

To launch the new location, the shop will hold a grand opening and open house on Sept. 7 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., featuring vendors, displays and food. Customers can also register for and win door prizes at the event.

Havlick said the new 4,000 square-foot facility will allow them to bring in new products as well as expand their current inventory. He said there will be more guns on display, including long guns and pistols, and there will be much more space for them to be displayed. In recent months Frank's has begun to carry Costa sunglasses, will expand their clothing line. A larger supply of Rocky boots and clothing will also be for sale at the new location.

He said the expansion was necessary because they wanted to keep up with customer demands. "It's hard to sell from an empty store or from a catalog by only looking at pictures. We like to have a fully-stocked store with all the stuff that everyone is looking for." The most compelling reason for the expansion was parking, he said. "We did not have nearly enough room for parking, and now we can fit 10 tractor trailers, and still have room for 20 or more cars and trucks."

Businesses Asked to Join Reading Program for Kids

The Greater Johnstown School District will begin a new "READ FOR REWARD" campaign in September to encourage students of all ages to open a book and read.

In September, one week will be selected where students enrolled in any grade within the Johnstown School District can go into participating businesses and read for 15-20 minutes. In turn, students will be rewarded with a treat or coupon from the participating business.

The rewards given are completely up to the participating business. Examples include but are not limited to: One free ice cream scoop, one free cookie, one free or discounted haircut, one piece of pizza, etc. If a business chooses to participate in this week-long campaign, you will be provided with a flyer to display in your store window. The flyer will highlight the program and let students know you are a participant. The program is expected to provide "a great sense of community for both the students and businesses," Chamber organizers said.

The district will be happy to provide books for the duration of the campaign if needed. If your business is interested in participating, please contact Jenna Patterson at the Fulton County Regional Chamber of Commerce: jennap@fultonmontgomeryny.org.

Derek Countryman

Derek Countryman
of Canajoharie High School

Derek Countryman, a Canajoharie High School senior, is the valedictorian of his class, with a 96.8 GPA, and has served as Student Council Representative and Student Council President.

In eighth grade, the experience of feeling helpless while his brother suffered after a UTV accident, inspired him to become certified in CPR and first aid, and has also led him to his goal of studying medicine as a career. He has hopes of becoming a cardiac surgeon, and said, "As a doctor, if I were in a situation where medical attention and first responders were needed, I would be able to aid in saving someone's life. This definitely is one of the best feelings you could experience."

Along with his academic achievements and several community service activities, he is an Eagle Scout, and three-sport athlete, competing in varsity golf, wrestling and track. He was named Varsity Golf Team Captain in both his junior and senior years.

He attended Boys State in 2018, and one of his teachers said, "he feels a civic duty and acts upon those ideals." He has served as a student representative for Angelo Santabarbara at the NY State Capitol for the past two years.

Countryman started his own business in ninth grade as a woodturner, and currently is an artisan for national lifestyle brand Beekman 1802, making hand-turned wooden pens, spinners and snowmen for the company.

Along with volunteering, Scouting, academics, business and athletics, he has also held several jobs through high school.

His Scoutmaster said, "he is an extraordinary student, Scout and is highly self-motivated."

Ivy Dulysz

Ivy Dulysz
of Amsterdam High School

Ivy Dulysz, a senior at Amsterdam High School, is interested in using her talents in music, and combining them with her compassion for people. She will attend Nazareth College in the fall to major in Music Therapy, in hopes of working with a special needs population.

She says, "I work in the self contained classrooms within the Greater Amsterdam School District, wherein the students are multiply disabled, mostly non-verbal, and highly dependent on one-to-one assistance around the clock. I find the impact music has on these unique individuals critical to their development and a possible contributor to their ability to lead a more independent life ... I have found that they enjoy and even thrive when listening to or involved in music."

Academically, she is ranked 5th in her class, with a weighted average of 97.2. Her musical activities include Marching Band, Jazz Band, Wind Ensemble, Pit Orchestra, Symphonic Band, all County Music Festival, and Area All State. She has also been honored with several awards.

As a student, she is also a leader. Highlights include being a member of the National Coalition Building Institute and National Honor Society.

She was chosen to attend the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership experience as an Ambassador in 2017; and is still active as a junior staff member and Area Board President. In 2018 she was awarded the organization's Presidential Volunteer Award for completing more than 250 hours of service in one year.

One teacher called her "an educator's dream," and another said "she has direction, focus and expends her energy in only the most productive and worthwhile activities."

Haley Salisbury:

Haley Salisbury
of Amsterdam High School

Amsterdam High School senior Haley Salisbury's achievements include being class vice president; treasurer of the National Honor Society, and captain of the award-winning AHS majorettes.

She is 9th in her class and has maintained a 96.3 weighted average while taking at least 3 AP/honors courses each year. Teachers said, "she strives for perfect grades and works diligently to earn them."

Aside from her achievements as a typical high school student, she is open about the fact that she has had to work to overcome a horrific family situation involving an unspeakable betrayal by her father, which left her mother struggling and her family forever affected.

About her resilience, one instructor said, "She is one of the strongest individuals and most dedicated students I have had in my 28-year career. I can't even comprehend how she dealt with the issues that tore her family apart. She faced everything head on, helped her family get through it, and she did not let it define her as a person. The strength and elegance that she displayed showed who she truly was as a person."

These challenges helped her define her goals for the future. Her goal is to be a child and victim's advocate lawyer to fight for those who were put in an awful situation like she was. She said, she will "fight for victims who don't have a voice."

Salisbury was accepted to her first choice school — Union College in Schenectady — and will major in sociology and law and humanities. She said "this will help me to be a hero for kids who had their childhood ripped away from them like I had."

ShayLyn Springstead:

ShayLyn Springstead
of Broadalbin-Perth High School

ShayLyn Springstead is a Broadalbin-Perth High School senior, and is 19th in her class, with a weighted GPA of 96.3. She will be the first person in her family to attend college, when she begins her first semester at University at Albany in the fall.

She said, "Personally, the idea of receiving a college degree gives me a sense of confidence, motivation and pride." She aspires to attain a degree in medicine, and plans to focus her undergraduate years on both psychology and biology.

A teacher explained that she is one of the top performing students in AP Calculus and was also the same for Honors Pre-Calculus. He said, "these courses are very competitive and her work ethic, mathematical ability and passion for learning are what has put her in, and keeps her in, these top positions."

He said, "she is someone who you would want as a friend and on your team for any type work or challenge you may be doing. She is never rude, is always striving for excellence and for finding a way to develop a thorough understanding of new content and skills."

Another instructor said, "Along with academic success, she is active in her community, and volunteers with a cheerleading youth camp, where she strives to be an exceptional role model for the young girls ... She creates a positive atmosphere in the classroom, she's honest, she works hard, and she is always helpful to her fellow students."

Carolyn Adamczyk grew up in Hope, NY and graduated from Northville Central School in 1985. Upon graduation, she joined the Air Force and served for over 20 years. Carolyn's biography notes she "always knew she would return to Northville." She and her husband Ken moved back in 2014.

Montgomery County Launches Exit 29 Redevelopment Project Website

Information and updates regarding the “Exit 29 Redevelopment Project,” located at the site of the former Beech-Nut plant in Canajoharie, will now be available to the public and potential developers through a new website launched by Montgomery County officials.

Montgomery County Executive Matthew Ossenfort said, “Our new website is a tremendous opportunity to exchange information with the community and potential developers as we move forward with the demolition and redevelopment of the site. The design is aimed at not only providing updates for the community, but providing a convenient, accessible location for potential developers to gather information.”

The site, www.exit29project.com, was developed by Engines of Creation and the project was funded through a joint effort between the county and the Industrial Development Agency. The county’s Business Development Center and Executive’s Office collaborated for several months to determine what information should be included and how it would be displayed. Website information will be updated regularly.

An introductory paragraph on the site’s home page states, “Montgomery County, NY is working hand in hand with the Village of Canajoharie to transform the former Beech-Nut site located at scenic Exit 29 of the NYS Thruway into a productive, vibrant, walkable development. Both the County and the Village are striving toward a future where the site integrates with the existing fabric of the Village to enhance the quality of life, provide jobs, increase the tax base, and provide recreational and social benefits for the Village and the surrounding region.”

“This website will provide interested developers with much of the pertinent information about the Exit 29 site. Being fully visible from the New York State Thruway makes the Exit 29 site highly visible and, we think, very attractive to many development uses,” Montgomery County Business Development Center Director Kenneth F. Rose said. “The site includes a high water, sewer, electric and gas infrastructure that have been maintained for future development purposes. The IDA is excited about the progress being made and happy to provide additional support to the county, with the continued goal of helping to craft a vision for the redevelopment of this 27-acre property.”

The website offers a project timeline, site conditions, as well as history and use considerations. Viewers can obtain information about the area’s attractions and features, transportation and regional demographics. Also included on the site is project news and a forum to request information. The county has been working to livestream demolition of the eastern portion of the site.

Updates on the progress of the “Exit 29 Redevelopment Project” are available at a new website.

To entice potential developers, the website’s home page explains, “The former Beech-Nut site offers numerous opportunities for development all backed and supported by both Montgomery County, NY and the Village of Canajoharie. Located along the historic and scenic Mohawk River, this NYS Opportunity Zone has direct access to the NYS Thruway and numerous secondary thoroughfares, the 26.9 acres of the Exit 29 site is prime real estate waiting for the right developer. The Exit 29 site is fully visible from the NYS Thruway with a car count of over 23,000 vehicles passing daily. The site is electric and water ready and includes a high water, sewer, electric and gas infrastructure that has been maintained for future development purposes.”

“Growing our village requires investments and cooperation that support the creation of a vibrant, walkable downtown which invites people and businesses to establish roots and flourish,” District 3 Legislator Roy S. Dimond said. “The Exit 29 Redevelopment Project website will further our goal by encouraging the redevelopment of an abandoned property in the village of Canajoharie, while also spurring economic growth for the entire region.”

Clients can book a private Botox experience for themselves, or join with a group of friends, and Constantino and Clarkin will travel to their location.

Botox and Xeomin

Ageless Aesthetics customers are mostly women that range in age from 25 to 65, but there are plenty of male customers, too, Constantino said. Many are looking to reduce forehead lines, frown lines, crows feet and smiles lines. Botox and Xeomin are drugs prepared from the bacterial toxin botulin, and when injected in minute doses, removes wrinkles by temporarily paralyzing certain facial muscles just under the skin. The pair prefer Xeomin, and use it in a majority of cases.

Botox and Xeomin are also used medically to treat certain muscular and other medical conditions, and the two practitioners are happy to help with these as well.

Botox and Xeomin treatments are known to be an effective nonsurgical method of treating excessive armpit sweating, also known as hyperhidrosis, as well as migraine headaches, facial twitches, and other muscular issues. When used in the armpits, it blocks the sympathetic nerve signals that stimulate excessive sweating. “We are helping people to feel more confident, and they have said that they feel great because they can finally wear certain shirts without feeling self-conscious,” Constantino said.

Constantino said she and Clarkin feel gratified when people feel great about themselves and are happy with the results. They both have been practicing in their more traditional medical roles for decades, and have found it a refreshing change from their regular work, which often focuses more on those who are sick or injured.

She said for example, it is satisfying to help people with frown lines on their face that can make them feel not true to how they see themselves. “They think, ‘I look like I’m scowling, but I’m really not like that.’”

She said friends often seek

Mary Constantino treats a patient who would like to soften forehead lines.

their services as a group. “It’s people who are scared of needles, who might do it together with their friends, or people who are not looking for that ‘Joan Rivers look’ but a more confident look, so that when they go out, they feel more like themselves.”

“We feel strongly that this shouldn’t be unattainable for people,” she said.

The effects of Botox and Xeomin diminish after about 3 months, and she suggested touch-ups within 3-4 months, and sometimes even up to 6 months.

The cost varies by the amount of Botox or Xeomin that is utilized for the treatment, and is priced by the unit. Constantino said that for example, frown lines and “11s” are usually 20-30 units a treatment at $13 per unit. It can cost around $800 for someone to have both of their armpit areas treated for excessive sweating. In general, insurance does not pay for treatments with Botox or Xeomin.

IV Hydration

IV hydration therapy is also a major aspect of Ageless Aesthetics offerings. Customers receive a traditional IV, with a bag of fluids that can be mixed with vitamins, minerals, or medicines, depending on the needs of the client.

Treatments can be given for dehydration, jet lag, low energy, headaches and even hangovers. The service is not covered by insurance, and ranges from $100 for basic hydration, and increases up to $250 for hydration that includes prescribed medications.

Constantino spoke about a treatment she managed for a bride and groom on the morning of their wedding. She said the concerned bride called to ask for help because the groom was lethargic and hungover from the night before’s party and wasn’t up for the wedding. Constantino said IV hydration infused with medications had him feeling great in no time, and ready to celebrate their special day.

Starting the business was challenging, as the two had to wade through the regulatory factors and permitting involved in transporting sharps, medicine and bio-hazard materials, along with insurance and malpractice considerations, before they could begin treating patients. All treatments are also confidential and discreet, and the two follow the medical privacy rules set forth by HIPAA.

Constantino said, “You don’t have to drive to Albany to go to a big spa, Rebecca and I offer flexibility, and concierge service. We will come to you.”

To make an appointment or receive a consultation for services, visit Ageless Aesthetics on Facebook, www.facebook.com/Kikislaspaspa, or call (518) 332-4936.

Chamber Checks: Re-Circulating Money Locally

James Hannahs

Membership Coordinator

Membership@fulmontgomeryny.org

518-725-0641

Across both Fulton and Montgomery counties, residents play, live, and work, and often live much of their lives in their respective tight-knit communities. Economically, this creates a unique benefit: Local dollars stay within the region, and in turn, can be re-invested in the community to enhance the lives of businesses and residents together.

This "circulating money" can be recycled back into local companies and tax rolls in many ways, and contribute to the work of teachers and civil servants; help to fund local grants, and so much more. The Fulton Montgomery Chamber is home to one vehicle that not only helps create that circulation of local money, it also stands as an appropriate gift for any occasion. This vehicle is CHAMBER CHECKS!

The Chamber Check program was begun in 2007 and allows participating members to accept a check purchased at the Chamber office, and accept it in lieu of traditional payments (cash, credit, debit, etc.) Since it's a simple cash conversion, much like a bearer's bond, there's no cost associated with purchasing a check as a gift. The Chamber supplies each Chamber Check holder with a list of participating businesses, and products that can be obtained with the checks range from department stores, to aesthetic companies, to car repair facilities, and even restaurants.

Over the past twelve years, various companies have utilized the Chamber Check program for gifts during the holiday season for employees, incentives for employees who show increases in productivity, and raffle prizes for events. Chamber Checks have helped re-circulate more than $1M in the community.

That re-circulating money can allow entrepreneurs to expand their business exposure in areas they may have not been able to before. If a business owner accepts Chamber Checks, they further incentivize recipients to come through the door and spend that check, which allows the business to convert the check into cash, which contributes to their overall revenue stream. Thanks to the Chamber Check, the recipient shopped within the region, and helped enhance our business climate.

To sign up for the Chamber Check program, or to purchase checks, stop into either of the Chamber's offices or contact me at the Chamber office at (518) 725-0641 or via email at membership@fulmontgomeryny.org. We urge all shoppers in our area to consider shopping locally whenever possible. Check out what our region has to offer and help enhance the lives of all businesses, citizens, and communities.

Chamber Welcomes New Business & Education Partnership Coordinator

Jenna Patterson has joined the Fulton Montgomery Regional Chamber of Commerce staff as the Business and Education Partnership Coordinator.

Patterson is a graduate of Gloversville High School and attended the Culinary Arts pathway at HFM BOCES Career & Technical Education program. She continued her education in culinary arts at Johnson at Wales University in Rhode Island where she earned her Associates Degree in Culinary Arts and Bachelor's Degree in Sports Entertainment and Event Management.

Following graduation, Patterson pursued her passion in the hospitality industry. She gained experience at local establishments including restaurants and casinos before landing at the Chamber.

Patterson will work alongside supervisor Nicole Walrath, Director of Workforce Development, to continue to expand the Business and Education Partnership (BEP) program that provides workplace experiences to PTECH and pathway programs within HFM BOCES.

Walrath said of Patterson, "With Jenna's prior knowledge of workplace experiences and her eagerness to help students find their own pathways, she will certainly be an asset to our team."

Patterson can be reached at the Chamber at (518) 725-0641 or via email at jennap@fultonmontgomeryny.org. For more information about the Fulton Montgomery Regional Chamber of Commerce or the Chamber's Business and Education Program (BEP), visit the Chamber online at www.fultonmontgomeryny.org or on Facebook.

Professor Gerald Zahavi will explore the 20th century working world of Fulton County's glovers and tanners utilizing oral history and video interview selections, site recordings, and scanned historical photographs -- all collected by him and Susan McCormick in Gloversville and Johnstown in the 1990s for the Glovers of Fulton County research and documentation project.

Gerald Zahavi is professor of History, former Director of the University at Albany's Public History Program, and current Director of the Documentary Studies Program at the University at Albany. School at Syracuse University (the latter with a specialization in modern U.S. economic and labor history).

Zahavi's academic research interests are diverse. They include welfare capitalism, New York's industrial history, Adirondack history, labor and political radicalism in modern America, and oral history. Over the years, Prof. Zahavi has also been heavily involved in bringing history to a broad audience through public history and media projects; these have included oral and video history projects, radio and television productions, museum exhibits, and WWW hypermedia sites and on-line publications.

Long-Term Chamber Member Spotlight: Livingston's Furniture & Mattress (45 Years)

By Jessica Ford
Newsline Editor

For David Livingston of Livingston's Furniture & Mattress in Gloversville, customer service and relationship-building is a priority that winds through every interaction.

The business, opened in 1901, is in its fourth generation, and locations include the flagship store at 355 South Main Street in Gloversville, as well as a second location at 33 Dix Avenue in Queensbury, that was opened in the late 1950s. David began working at the store at around age 13, and his father Larry is still involved in the business. Over the years, the 45-year manager of the Queensbury store also brought his son into the fold, to create a "second family" that has more than one generation in the company.

Livingston's marked 45 years as a member of the Fulton County Regional Chamber of Commerce in June. Livingston said he believes being a part of the chamber affords local businesses excellent opportunities for promotion, and networking is also a valuable benefit. He said he appreciates that the Chamber is always working to enhance business in the community, noting that even if he is not able to attend a networking event, for example, he knows that at every opportunity, Chamber staff and leaders will make sure to mention the company's name to potential customers.

Creating a successful operation in this region is challenging and rewarding, Livingston said. Although the internet and pace of today's economy forces constant change, he said having products "here for people to experience" is very important. The Gloversville showroom features three floors of furniture and mattresses, and various styles, fabrics, leathers, accessories and colors are visible immediately upon entering. A large portion of the furniture available is made in the United States, Livingston noted.

Along with the range of items shown at the store, pricing is also wide ranging, so that the products are accessible to anyone who shops there. Livingston's offers free delivery, financing and customer service that does not end once the delivery is made.

Livingston said, "We like to service whatever is there after the sale. Many larger chains and stores don't necessarily care if people come back as return customers. We like to develop relationships, so that when they think of furniture, they come back to us." He noted that word of mouth is their best advertising, so he is very conscious of making sure each buyer is satisfied.

To best experience all that Livingston's has to offer, stop in at their Gloversville store. He said customers often express that they had no idea there was so much in the building, and second they say that they are impressed that the prices are so reasonable and competitive.

Featured furniture brands include All Wood Furniture; Ashley; Atlantic; Best Home; Coaster; Craftmaster; Fashion Bed Group; Howard Miller; Intercon and King Hickory. Mattress brands featured include Restonic; Stearns & Foster; and Symbol.

Livingston's Furniture & Mattress in Gloversville is open Monday to Thursday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Phone is (518) 725-8317 and email is livingstonsdave@gmail.com, or visit www.livingstonsfurn.com.

The showroom at Gloversville features 3 floors so that customers can truly experience the furniture before purchasing.

A broad range of styles, quality and pricing makes Livingston's accessible to everyone.
